HOOVER OFFICE TO BE IN ROOM USED BY ARMY

President Will Work in Temporary Quarters in State Building.

BURNED STRUCTURE WILL BE RESTORED

Nation Chief Gives Order After Looking Over Fire Damage.

CONSTRUCTION BIDS TO BE ASKED TODAY

Lincoln Study Will Serve Until Pershing's Desk Space Is Cleared.

Temporarily dispossessed by the fire that ravaged the White House executive offices Christmas Eve, President Hoover yesterday decided to establish a makeshift headquarters in the State, War and Navy Building.

The new bridge of the ship of state will be a handsome office once used by the Secretary of the Navy and now occupied by Gen. John J. Pershing.

When he was told that the walls of the office building were sound, the President gave the word to have it restored. Contractors will be asked to submit bids this morning, and the winner will be expected to complete the job of reconstruction in 60 days. Congress will be asked for an emergency appropriation to cover the cost.

Lincoln's Study to Be Used.

While he is waiting for the Army officers to move out of the offices in the State, War and Navy Building, the President will conduct the affairs of state from Abraham Lincoln's study in the White House. This arrangement probably will not continue for more than three days.

These plans of the President were made known yesterday afternoon by his secretary, George Akerson, after the Executive had been in conference with Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, officer in charge of public buildings and grounds, and had inspected the wrecked structure.

Meanwhile, the doubt that existed the night before as to just what caused the fire continued. Fire Marshal Achstetter declared that it was caused by an overheated fireplace in the office of Walter Newton, another of the President's secretaries, but the President was under the impression that defective wiring in the garret was to blame.

Definite Estimate Today.

Col. Grant tentatively estimated the damage at $50,000, but he said a definite estimate would have to wait until today.

In making known plans for the future yesterday, Secretary Akerson said that the President was determined on a business-as-usual policy notwithstanding the handicap under which the fire has placed him.

The President, he said, will maintain the same program in his study as he followed in the executive offices, except that the visitors he receives will have to be bent on business. Those who simply want to shake hands will have to wait a while.

Study on Second Floor.

The Lincoln study is located on the second floor in the southeast corner of the mansion, and the President's desk is alongside a window that looks out on the south grounds and the Washington Monument.

Mr. Akerson will have his desk in the corridor outside the study, and the other two secretaries—Mr. Newton and Lawrence Richey—will have their offices in bedrooms across the hall.

The principal event on the President's program today is the arrival of President-elect Ortiz Rubio, of Mexico. The Mexican leader is scheduled to reach Union Station at noon. After going to the embassy, he and his wife will visit the White House. Later President and Mrs. Hoover will go to the embassy to return the call.

Meetings to Be Held Today.

The Cabinet meeting tomorrow will be held in the President's study, and afterward the President will hold his usual 4 o'clock conference with the newspaper correspondents. Secretary Akerson will hold a press conference at 10 this morning. He has advised the newspaper men to enter the mansion by the east door.

When the temporary offices in the State, War and Navy Building have been made ready, the President will have only to cross the street to reach them. In going to and from the building he will use the east door just across from the White House executive offices.

The Army officers and clerks who will be moved out to make room for the President and his staff will be transferred to various other buildings assigned to the War Department.

Tuesday night's fire revived talk of an entirely new executive office building for the President. The latter, it is understood, is convinced that ulti-

D. F. Davis, Jr., Sister And Envoy in Crash

Trio Slightly Hurt When Automobile of Peter O. de Treschow Is Collided With Head-On by Another Machine—Other Accidents.

Dwight F. Davis, jr., and Miss Cynthia Davis, son and daughter of the Governor General of the Philippines, and Peter O. de Treschow, 39 years old, counselor of the Danish Legation, narrowly escaped serious injury with minor cuts and bruises at 6:30 o'clock last night at Wisconsin avenue and Military road northwest, when the automobile the envoy was driving collided head-on with a machine, injuring its three colored occupants.

The sudden impact of the crash, smashing the windows of the diplomat's car, sent glass flying in all directions and jolted the three with force to the floor of the machine. Miss Davis and Mr. de Treschow sustained bruises about the body, while Mr. Davis suffered minor cuts about the face and hands.

Louise Wilson, colored, 22 years old, of R street near Nineteenth street northwest, the driver of the car, sufferred lacerations of the scalp and received treatment at Georgetown Hospital. Upon dismissal she was arrested by Fourteenth Precinct police on charges of reckless driving and operating an automobile without a driver's permit. Her weakened condition led police to transfer her to Gallinger Hospital.

Catherine Juricks, colored, 44 years old, of R street near Nineteenth street northwest, suffered a broken collarbone, a broken right leg and a broken right arm. Milton Hicks, colored, 54 years old, chauffeur, of the same address, sustained a concussion of the brain. At Emergency Hospital, where both were admitted, their injuries were not regarded as serious.

Mr. de Treschow, well known in diplomatic circles as acting head of the Legation of Denmark during the absence of Constantin Brun as minister, said that he and his companions were returning from Rockville at a moderate rate of speed when the other car, without warning, smashed into his machine, tearing off its bumper, ramming a hole in the front and causing damage estimated at approximately $300. The machine occupied by the Negroes was demolished.

The envoy resides at 1714 Connecticut avenue northwest, while both Mr. and Miss Davis reside with

COUPLE AND NEPHEW DIE UNDER CLUBBING

Vanished Servant Is Sought in Mysterious Slaying of Knoxville Trio.

KINSMAN FINDS BODIES

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—The motive for the slaying of Dr. Barclay J. Jones, 61-year-old physician; his wife, Mrs. Lucy Lane Jones, 32, and her nephew, George Lane, 13, mystified officials investigating the killings since discovery of the three bodies this morning.

All had been beaten to death. A coroner's jury this afternoon returned a verdict of murder by some unknown person with robbery as a motive.

Sheriff Walker Anderson and his son, Deputy Sheriff Anderson, however, expressed belief that the slayings had followed an attack on Mrs. Jones and announced that they were seeking a young Negro named Sam, who had been employed in the household for the past week.

Sam, the sheriff said, made his home in the basement, where Mrs. Jones' stripped body was found with that of her young nephew nearby. He also said the door of her bedroom had been broken open and her bed was in a state of extreme disorder.

The body of Dr. Jones, who was one of the most prominent physicians in Knoxville, was found on the floor of a garage. A blood-stained ax and a pair of hedge clippers, also blood-stained, were found nearby.

The bodies were discovered by Bert Lane, well-known business man and a brother of Mrs. Jones, who was bearing Christmas gifts to the household. He first called on the telephone, but no one answered. On arriving at the home, which is about three miles from the center of the city, he found the house locked and forced entry. Exploring, he found the bodies of Mrs. Jones and the boy in the basement and then went to the garage, where he found the body of Dr. Jones.

Officials expressed belief that the three were killed around 9 or 10 o'clock last night.

Dr. and Mrs. Jones had been married about a year. She was his third wife. He had been divorced from his previous wives, both of whom are living. The Joneses had no children, but the Lane youth had been making his home with them. He was the son of Mrs. Ruth Thoms and his father is dead.

The Joneses moved to the home that was the scene of the killings a few months ago.

North Carolina Farmer Lays Out Victims for Burial Near His Home.

SON ESCAPES SLAUGHTER

Walnut Cove, N. C., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Becoming suddenly insane, a Stokes County farmer today slew his wife and six children and after laying them out for burial went into a patch of woods near his home and killed himself with a shotgun.

The body of C. D. Lawson, the 43-year-old father and husband, was found about half a mile from the home with a shotgun wound in his chest.

At the home were the bodies of Mrs. Lawson, 38; Marie, 17; James, 7; Raymond, 5, and Mary Lou, 4 months. The mother and her oldest daughter had been shot in the chest, apparently the same gun the father used to end his own life. James, Raymond and Mary Lou had been beaten to death with a blunt instrument.

In a tobacco barn, a quarter of a mile away, neighbors found the bodies of Carrie Lawson, 14, and Maribelle, 10. They had been shot in the back. Blood on snow outside the building led to the discovery of the bodies in the outbuilding.

The father, after he had slaughtered his wife and children, carefully prepared them for burial. He closed their eyes and folded their hands over their breasts. The heads of the five victims found in the home were placed on pillows. Old sacks were placed under the heads of the two girls whose bodies were found in the tobacco barn.

After he had done this, Lawson, believed to have become deranged from a blow he received on the head a year ago, went into the woods and shot himself to death.

Arthur, a 19-year-old son, who was visiting an uncle near Germantown, in Stokes County, a few miles from Walnut Cove, was the only member of the immediate family to escape the crazed man's carnage. He was prostrated when he returned home and learned of the tragedy.

Sheriff J. J. Taylor, of Stokes County, in reconstructing the details of the tragedy, said that Lawson apparently beat the three youngest White House Forgets Fire as President Is Host at Annual Dinner.

WILD TURKEY FORMS BIG ITEM ON MENU

Mrs. Hoover Entertains Children at Party and Yule Tree.

SPECIAL SERVICES HELD BY CHURCHES

Poorer Mortals Remembered With Food and Gifts From Agencies.

As usual, Santa Claus managed to get about quite a bit in Washington yesterday, paying cheery visits to the White House and several thousand other homes, flitting on to the jail and the hospitals, and not even overlooking the destitute mortals who thronged the city's mission halls in quest of whatever Christmas spirit might be left over after the regular customers had been served.

Although the fire which destroyed the executive wing of the White House on Christmas Eve unquestionably brought some anxious moments to the presidential family at the time, all memory of the blaze apparently was erased from their minds yesterday.

Hoover Host at Dinner.

President Hoover last night played host to the members of his Cabinet and their families at his official Christmas dinner, served beneath a blaze of light from the brilliant chandeliers in the vast state dining room of the Executive Mansion. The children of Secretaries Hurley and Davis were among the guests, as was also the son of Secretary Wilbur, who accompanied Allan Hoover, son of the President.

An old-fashioned Christmas dinner was served to the presidential family at noon, the piece de resistance being a wild turkey, his favorite fowl, which was shot by Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries, during a hunting trip in Virginia last week.

Despite the fact that their eldest son, Herbert, jr., and his wife were in California and could not particiuate in the Christmas celebration at the White House, it was a real, old-fashioned Christmas for President and Mrs. Hoover, their children and their house guests.

Family Exchanges Gifts.

The broad corridors of the White House resounded yesterday with the patter of childish footsteps as the children of Secretary of Labor Davis and of George Akerson and Walter Newton, the President's secretaries, romped with the children of other guests who attended the Christmas party given by President and Mrs. Hoover. A huge Christmas tree was set up in the President's apartments on the second floor and there the family and guests gathered to exchange gifts and greetings of the season.

Because it is customary in the Friends' Meeting House, at Thirteenth and Irving streets northwest, to observe Christmas on the near-east Sunday and to hold no services on Christmas Day, the President and Mrs. Hoover did not attend church yesterday, but put in the day, instead, enjoying the holiday before a huge log fire in their White House home.

An added note of joy was brought to the Christmas celebration in the White House by the President's satisfaction in the far-reaching results of American leadership in moving toward world peace through the medium of the Kellogg treaty renouncing war

CANADIAN MISSION ARRIVES IN SEWARD

Coast Guard Cutter Chelan Is Safe After Battling Heavy Weather.

Moscow, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—The Soviet government today dispatched an airplane to search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, off the Siberian coast and ordered two other Soviet planes to join in the mission. It was believed the ice in the district to be covered was strong enough to cause the use of ice breakers.

The Moscow authorities took prompt action on the request of Senator Borah, of Idaho, to Acting Foreign Commissar Litivinoff and the similar appeal of the U. S. Department of the Interior.

Semyon Shestakov, who has been a national hero since his recent return after making a successful flight from Moscow to New York, was selected as the most able man at the command of the Soviet Union to lead the rescue expedition. He will pilot an airplane of the same type as the Land of the Soviets in which he and three companions flew across Siberia and then over the northern reaches of the Pacific to Alaska, a route which took them close to where the American explorer and aviator is believed to have been lost.

Two of the Soviet planes now are at Providence Bay in the extreme northeast of Siberia on Behring Strait. Shertakov was at Cape Northern.

(Cape Northern does not appear on available maps, but many of the peninsulas of the Siberian coast have several names, given them by explorers and seamen of various nations.)

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—A clew has been uncovered in the search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, Arctic fliers, who have been missing more than six weeks, Alfred J. Lomen, director of rescue operations in Nome, informed the Seattle Times today. He said Pilot Joe Crosson radioed a message from the trading ship Nanuk, near North Cape, Siberia, that traders and natives near there had heard Eielson's plane circling overhead for a long while as though seeking a place to land.

While not stated in the message, it is assumed that the plane was heard near the ship on November 9, the day it was last seen flying from the Alaskan mainland to the ice-bound Nanuk to take passengers and furs off the marooned vessel.

Natives Build Hangar.

Lomen also said Crosson has had natives build a temporary hangar out of snow blocks near Northcape to shelter his plane and keep it out of the cold while warming the motor.

Nome, Alaska, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—With the safe arrival of a supposedly missing Alaskan pilot and his two passengers at Elephant Point, on Kotzebue Sound across Seward Peninsula from Nome, the Northland again turned to the search for Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and Mechanic Earl Borland, missing since early in November somewhere between Teller, Alaska, and North Cape, Siberia.

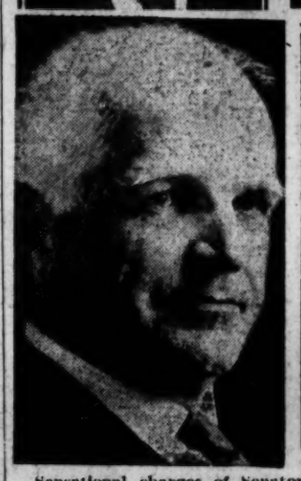
MITCHELL AND DORAN SLAP BACK AT BORAH; CLAIM DRY PROGRESS



Sensational charges of Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, that the prohibition enforcement personnel "from top to bottom" would never enforce the dry laws, yesterday drew forth sharp rebukes from Attorney General William D. Mitchell, upper left, and Prohibition Commissioner James M. Moran, upper right, representing the Treasury Department; evoked a comment of surprise from Bishop William F. McDowell, lower left, Methodist leader, and brought from Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, lower right, a statement in which he expressed hope that neither President Hoover nor the law enforcement commission would seriously consider what he described as attempts recently to censor opinions of individual commissioners.

Effort to Better Force Being Made, Declares Attorney General.

DORAN DEFENDS MEN WORKING UNDER HIM

Present Personnel Held as Good as Possible at Any Time.

SENATOR SEES REPLY AS PROVING CHARGES

"Heroic Effort" Is Evidently Needed, Idahoan Asserts in Statement.

(Associated Press.)

Three caustic statements on prohibition enforcement last night heightened the spreading controversy over the situation, with two Government departments rebuking the stand taken by Senator Borah, of Idaho, and him replying that "An Heroic Effort" was evidently required.

For the Department of Justice, Attorney General Mitchell said that when Congress sees fit to strengthen the dry enforcement machinery, those who administer the law "will be able to accomplish more."

For the Treasury Department, Prohibition Commissioner Doran said Mr. Borah's recent denunciation of the entire Volstead personnel was "unfortunate and bound to have a disheartening effect upon the morale of the service."

The Idaho Senator Tuesday expressed the conviction that the alcohol traffic would never be suppressed "with the present personnel from top to bottom." Last night he said Mr. Mitchell's statement that "an effort is being made to improve the personnel" evidently meant that "its conditions were such as to call for an effort and an heroic effort."

Public Change Claimed.

The Attorney General said there had been an improvement in the last six months, and added: "There has also, under the President's leadership, been a noticeable change in public attitude toward law observance."

Both Attorney General Mitchell's and Commissioner Doran's statements were directed in answer to that by Senator Borah of Tuesday, in which he took the position that the dry law spoke for itself in connection with demands by Southern dry senators for a report of some sort on prohibition by the Hoover law enforcement commission. The Idahoan contended then that "to find the kind of officials who will enforce it" was all that was needed to make the Volstead act effective.

Mr. Mitchell said the honor of the hundreds of public servants made it impossible for him to let pass without protest the wholesale charge leveled by Senator Borah against United States attorneys, marshals and other officers of the Department of Justice. He added that these men had been doing their best to enforce the law and that there has never been greater zeal in the enforcement than now. For months, he continued, the department had been working on measures designed to improve personnel, relieve congestion in the courts and to reorganize the enforcement agencies.

Text of Mitchell Statement.

The next of the Mitchell statement was:

"I can not for the honor of hundreds of devoted public servants allow to pass without protest a wholesale charge of indifference to prohibition enforcement which has been leveled against United States attorneys, marshals, and other officers of the Department of Justice and appearing in the press this morning.

"These men are generally known in their own communities as men of integrity and courage, doing their best to enforce the law. There have been Alleged Slayer Taken From Bound Jailer, Shot and Tossed in Ditch.

RECOVERY IS DOUBTFUL

Jackson, Ky., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Chester Fugate, a tenant farmer held for the slaying of his landlord, was taken from the Breathitt County Jail this morning, shot half a dozen times and thrown into a ditch, where five hours later his prayers and groans attracted help.

Fugate was brought to a hospital here, and when it was learned that he was not expected to live his signed statement was taken. He was said to have stated that he recognized several of the mob, but county officials declined to give any intimation of their names pending arrests.

The mob that avenged the death of Clay Watkins, lawyer and wealthy land owner, worked quietly and apparently under good leadership. Five men about 2 a. m. slipped into the bedroom of Sollie Combs, the jailer, in his home adjoining the jail. Combs said that before he was fully awake his arms and feet had been

M'DOWELL REGRETS BORAH'S STATEMENT

Describes Senator as 'Friend of Cause' and Calls for Cooperation Anew.

CALLS OFFICERS HONEST

Bishop William F. McDowell, one of the leaders of the Methodist forces in Washington, yesterday replied to Senator Borah's stinging criticism of the national prohibition enforcement personnel with a plea for all "friends of the cause" to work together in "upholding the hands" of those charged with making the Volstead act effective. His statement was made in reply to a question on his opinion of the Idaho statesman's attack.

"I was very sorry to see the statement," he said, "as it seemed to reflect on and condemn the prohibition enforcement officers of whom the great bulk are honest and able. There may be some who are dishonest and incapable, but I don't know of them. If I did I would bring them to the attention of the administration. I believe most of them are making an honest effort to enforce the law."

The tone of the bishop's comments on the statement indicated surprise

Mrs. Ruggles has all but overcome the effects of 50 grains of powerful sleeping medicine she took near the fashionable St. John's Church, at Sixteenth and H streets, two weeks ago. She was unconscious for four days, and for a time her recovery was doubtful.

Then her youthful constitution asserted itself and she began rapidly to throw off the effects of the drug. She became cheerful, where she had been despondent, and her appetite

House Member's Kin Held in Killing

Oklahoman Is Accused of Murdering Man Who Came to His Home.

Jay, Okla., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Charged with murder, Wirt Hastings, nephew of Representative W. W. Hastings, of Tahlequah, was in the Delaware county jail here today awaiting formal arraignment. Hastings was arrested last night, 24 hours after Charles Geayrook, a neighbor, had been shot to death as he sat in the Hastings home, three miles southeast of Bernice.

Geayrock was said to have been summoned to the Hastings home by Mrs. Hastings, who said her husband was drunk and she was unable "to do anything with him." Hastings' brothers, Edgar and Owen, who lived with him said that Geayrock was shot as he sat in a chair, unarmed. Wirt Hastings, they said, fired a shotgun as he entered from another room.

Hastings had made no statement today.

Stephenson was said to have been at the controls at the time of the crash.

Stewart, owner of the plane, was an experienced pilot. He had been making his headquarters in Raleigh recently and flew here from Raleigh. He leaves a widow and children. Stephenson and Blaylock were unmarried.

weak spots; we have been working hard to eliminate them.

"From contact with the department over a period of years, I can state that there never has been greater zeal and activity in the enforcement of law than at the present time.

Work Under Handicap.

"These men are working under great handicaps. Those in the department connected with prohibition enforcement have been for months past busy on measures for improving personnel, relieving congestion in the courts, reorganizing the enforcement agencies and meeting the multitude of problems arising in the effort to improve conditions. When Congress is ready to consider and adopt legislation to carry out the administration's recommendations for more adequate law enforcement machinery, those whose duty it is to enforce the law will be able to accomplish more. There has been improvement in the last six months. There has also, under the President's leadership, been a change in public attitude toward law observance.

"All agencies in the executive service having any part in enforcing prohibition have been too conscious of determined and unceasing pressure from the President for enforcement to leave any room for indifference. Such deficiencies as exist in prohibition enforcement are not due to lack of will to enforce the law either at the top or the bottom."

Doran Answer in Full.

The text of the Doran statement, which was issued with the approval of the Treasury Department, was:

"My attention has been called to a statement by Senator Borah in which he says that the prohibition law, in his opinion, will never be enforced by the present personnel. With all due respect to the senator, it seems to me that such a sweeping condemnation of a group of public servants who are honestly and conscientiously endeavoring to perform their duty is most unfortunate and bound to have a disheartening effect upon the morale of the service.

"This is not to say that in a large organization such as that of the Prohibition Bureau there are not weak spots. It is not to say that administration is not susceptible to improvement, but to say that prohibition can not be enforced with the present personnel comes perilously near to saying that it can not be enforced at all. Based on my 22 years of experience in the Government service, I can affirm that, on the whole, we are not likely to find a more loyal and conscientious group of men than are now serving under me. In this connection it should not be forgotten that they are now chosen from civil service lists, based on open competitive examinations in accordance with the reorganization act recently passed by the Congress, and it is hard to believe that in the future the Congress will authorize looking elsewhere for new recruits.

Marked Progress Claimed.

"Moreover, such a sweeping statement overlooks the very marked progress which has been made in this particular field of law enforcement which is set forth in detail in my report to the Congress and which is amply supported by facts.

"Important as is the problem of personnel, it is not the only problem. As I see it, aside from the cooperation of private citizens, there are other factors involved in the enforcement of the prohibition laws. First, there must be the will to enforce. No one, I think, will deny that under the present administration has existed a whole-hearted determination to enforce the law. This has been evidenced by the clean-cut declarations of the Chief Executive, which in my judgment have not only had an inspiring effect on the morale of public servants but have met with a very genuine response on the part of private citizens. No one in my bureau has any doubt as to the position of this administration on this point.

"But given the will to enforce, given a suitable personnel taken from civil service lists, there still remains the problem of the most effective kind of an administrative set-up, and this relates not only to the enforcement of the law within our borders but to the shutting off of the supply of illicit liquor from without our borders.

Exhaustive Study Made.

"Acting under instructions from the President, in the course of the last few months an exhaustive study has been made, not only of the best means to improve the administration of the law, but of the proper relation between Federal and State enforcement forces. As a result of these studies there has been prepared and will be submitted to the Congress a plan of reorganization, which in my judgment will promote the better enforcement of the law.

"Moreover, the Treasury Department is prepared to submit to the Congress a program looking to the more effective prevention of smuggling on our land borders by establishing a limited number of points of entry and providing for the guarding of the area between these points by a unified border patrol under the Coast Guard. In so far as our water frontiers are concerned, I understand that Admiral Billard has submitted a program looking to the strengthening of our Coast Guard fleet not only on the ocean but on our inland waters, which has met with the approval of the Treasury Department.

Personnel Improving.

"In conclusion, I affirm that genuine progress is being made in the enforcement of the prohibition laws, that the personnel in the Federal prohibition service is steadily improving in morale and efficiency, that my observation leads me to believe that under the leadership of the President there has been a much more helpful attitude on the part of the public, and finally, in so far as administration is concerned, a program is ready for submission to the Congress."

Senator Borah remarked on Attorney General Mitchell's assertion that an effort was being made to improve prohibition enforcement personnel with the assertion that "evidently its conditions were such as to call for an effort, and a heroic effort." He wished the Attorney General luck in his efforts, and said if a proposal was before Congress which would help to strengthen the personnel, he did not know of it.

Statement "Encouraging."

The text of Senator Borah's statement was:

"The Attorney General's statement is encouraging. He states that an effort is being made to improve the personnel. Evidently its conditions were such as to call for an effort and a heroic effort. How much progress has been made I have no means of knowing, as its results have not appeared on the face of things. The truth of the business is that the personnel is in need of drastic overhauling and if the Attorney General is engaged in that work, strength to his arm.

"If there is any proposal before Congress which will help this particular feature of the situation, that also should be speeded, but I know of no proposal which will reach the condition as I see it in this particular matter."

M'DOWELL REPLIES TO BORAH OUTBURST

at Senator Borah's outburst rather than a reprimand of the Senator, whom he characterized as an able friend of the drys.

"I'm sure Senator Borah does not mean to be unfair," he added. "He is one of the greatest and ablest friends of the cause."

Bishop McDowell denied charges that the dry law is a failure in its lack of enforcement.

"Prohibition has made more advancement within the last eight months than the whole preceding time since the enactment of the Volstead law," he declared. "It must be remembered that the fight is a lengthy one and that enforcement in any great measure is as difficult as it is with all laws.

Wants More Laws.

"It seems that just now we ought to urge Congress to act on pending bills to remove the obstacles and hardships which handicap the Prohibition Bureau. When we have perfect conditions for law enforcement, then we can get rid of any incompetent and dishonest officials."

The bishop explained that he referred particularly to the act urged by President Hoover for the removal of the enforcement authority from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice.

"It is imperative that all friends of the cause shall not cripple the long campaign by criticisms of petty features of enforcement," he concluded. "We must all work together constructively and positively for the success of our work in behalf of prohibition."

ADMITS RIGHTS VIOLATED

New York, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, tonght expressed a hope no serious consideration would be given to efforts of some dry senators to have the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission make a preliminary report on prohibition enforcement.

Senator Wagner's statement also said he was "quite certain the President will pay no heed to the demand" for the removal from the commission of Judge Paul J. McCormick because of the jurist's recent comment in Los Angeles on what he called "Government lawlessness" in connection with prohibition.

Mr. Wagner said there was "evidence aplenty" that dry agents had searched homes of innocent citizens without warrants and declared there was "nothing so offensive to the public sense of what is right."

Referring to the demand for a preliminary report, he said it was "imperative that the commission be given both the time and the latitude" to make its report on the basis of "complete information and mature deliberation."

The demand of the dry leaders, he said, "confirms a suspicion that they do not realy desire to see the prohibition question solved; that they prefer to continue to use it as a political shibboleth and political weapon."

50 Treated in New York Hospitals as Alcoholics

New York, Dec. 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Fifty participants in the festival of Christmas were checked in at Bellevue and King's County Hospital alcoholic wards tonight after a 24-hour chase by ambulances all over the city to pick up rum victims.

Although many were in serious condition, surgeons at both institutions maintained that the liquor was not of a poison variety, but that most of the patients were merely suffering from alcoholism, mostly as a result of overdrinking inferior liquor. Many were discharged after obtaining treatment.

children to death with the barrel of a double-barreled shotgun found in the home.

He then used a 12-gauge single-barreled gun to slay his wife and their oldest daughter.

Carrie and Maribelle, the two other girls, fled terrified. The father, the sheriff inferred, pursued them to the tobacco barn and shot them in the back as they ran.

Bodies in Tobacco Shed.

The bodies of the two girls were placed in the tobacco barn, their arms folded over their breasts and their eyes closed.

Lawson then returned to the house and prepared the bodies of his wife and the other children he had slain.

Sheriff Taylor thought a semblance of reason might have returned to the deranged man and when Lawson realized the monstrosity of his deed he went into the woods and shot himself.

HARVARD STUDENT TUMBLES TO DEATH

Columbia Professor's Son, Visiting Parents, Dies After Fall.

SUICIDE IDEA SCOUTED

New York, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—The pajama-clad body of Benson Boring, 20 years old, a junior at Harvard University, was found in the courtyard of the home of his parents, Prof. and Mrs. William A. Boring, today by a Negro porter.

Police said he apparently had fallen from the window of his room on the eleventh floor. His father is a professor at Columbia University.

The boy had arrived at his home Saturday to spend the Christmas holidays with his mother and father. He was an only child. Christmas eve he went out and returned home at about 3 a. m.

His father told detectives that the boy had first gone to the ice box for some cold duck and wine and had then retired.

Prof. Boring said that his son then became ill, apparently, and went to the window. It appeared that he lost his balance and fell to his death. In the fall he struck a fence which mangled his body. The porter, Thomas Owens, notified the police.

The youth's mother was hysterical when informed of his death. Prof. Boring scouted the idea that his son might have committed suicide.

Chicago U. Plans Museum in Turkey

Hittite Collection Housing Is Backed by Prof. Breasted.

Angora, Turkey, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Charles Breasted, jr., son of the director of the Oriental Institute of Chicago University, is in Angora consulting with the Turkish government about plans for the creation of a Hittite museum in the Turkish capital.

Hundreds of Hittite monuments, discovered by American archeological expeditions under the direction of Prof. Van der Osten, of the Chicago Institute, are now stored in packing cases in Angora for want of a suitable museum. These American discoveries and the finds of former German expeditions will make the Angora museum one of the richest Hittite collections in the world.

The museum will probably be constituted in the new building of the Turk Odjak, headquarters of the nation-wide chain of Turkish cultural and social clubs. Funds for this building were given by the late "Golden Rule" Nash, clothing manufacturer of Cincinnati, Ohio.

He was carried from the room unconscious and taken to a hospital, where it was stated this afternoon he would be discharged in a few hours.

men were able to land. His identity was not learned. Downey died of a bullet wound in the abdomen.

The boat, customs officials say, answered the description of one which has been running rum and narcotic drugs from the Canadian shore to Buffalo and vicinity. They had been notified by Ontario officials, they said, that the surreptitious traffic of narcotics between Canada and the United States recently had grown to extensive proportions.

Downey was released only last week in bail of $1,000, after he had been arrested by special agents of the Coast Guard intelligence unit on a smuggling conspiracy charge. He was one of nine arrested in connection with the alleged smuggling activities of the barge Loretta, which, it is charged by the Government, brought 1,000 cases of liquor to Buffalo from Port Colborne, Ontario, last October.

FULL HONORS HERE AWAIT ORTIZ RUBIO

President-Elect of Mexico to Be Received Today as if in Office.

HOOVERS TO MAKE CALL

(Associated Press.)

The same official greetings as would be accorded to the active head of a nation tonight await the arrival in Washington today of President-elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico.

At the Mexican Embassy yesterday attaches turned from the observance of the holiday to prepare for the arrival of their next president from Baltimore today. President-elect Ortiz Rubio has been undergoing treatment at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Arthur Lane, chief of the Mexican division of the State Department, said that Secretary and Mrs. Stimson would greet the president-elect at Union Station shortly before noon, and afterward would join the procession to the Mexican Embassy.

Soldiers, sailors and marines will render military honors both at the station and at the embassy, and a squadron of motorcycle policemen will comprise an escort from the one to the other.

In the afternoon Senor and Senora Ortiz Rubio will be received at the White House by President and Mrs. Hoover, who will break a precedent a little later when they journey to the embassy to return the call in person. All previous visiting presidents-elect have had their calls repaid by cards left by a White House attache. This custom prevailed in the recent visit of Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

Earlier plans had been for President Hoover to receive the visiting dignitary in the executive offices of the White House, but these arrangements were changed because of the fire Christmas Eve which made the place unusable.

Senora Ortiz Rubio will accompany Mrs. Hoover back to the White House from the embassy for a tea, and later in the afternoon the governing board of the Pan-American Union will receive in honor of the President-elect in the Union Building. Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow will have Senor and Senora Ortiz Rubio as his guests at a dinner in the evening.

Senora Ortiz Rubio will have assigned to her while here as aids from the Army and Navy, Lieut. Charles E. Falzman and Lieut. Comdr. Alexander Macomb. Mrs. Hoover was supplied with similar aids by the countries of South America through which she and Mr. Hoover passed on their good will trip before his inauguration.

GALE LASHES SEAS OFF BRITISH ISLES

Norwegian Steamer Is Sunk With Its Entire Crew of 24 Men.

WILD WEATHER RULES

London, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Ye olde Christmas Day in England came in like a lamb and went out as a lashing, roaring gale that sent ships scooting for shelter all around the British Isles. The storm area extended from the Orkney Islands to Spain.

Vigo, Spain, reported the loss of the Norwegian steamer Asluag, with its entire crew of 24, off Farallones Bayona, early today.

The storm blew out of the southwest, banishing the blue skies and summery weather of southern England. Rain fell in torrents and hail rattled on the streets of London this morning, while wild weather ruled the south coast districts where Christmas visitors to resort towns watched great seas pound on the beaches and harbor walls at Folkestone and other ports.

Many ships sought sheltered water from Plymouth to Scotland, where a 70-mile wind swept toward the Orkneys. The mails were held up at Kirkwall and the North Orkneys were without Christmas letters, all sea services being suspended.

For the first time in 30 years no trawlers were in with fish at Aberdeen market today. The harbor bar was not passable. The Aberdeen district has been stormbound for a week, while Southern Britain was enjoying warmth and sunshine. Not a vessel has entered or left Aberdeen since last Monday.

Ireland experienced gales which at times had the force of hurricanes last night and early today. Trees were uprooted and minor damage done in towns.

Lloyds reported numerous steamships in difficulties with propeller or rudder trouble, but the Norwegian craft was the only instance where loss of life was reported.

Despite the gale, England was moderately warm today. This morning 34 stalwarts, whose ages ranged from 72 to 17 years, swam across Serpentine Lake in Hyde Park in competition for the silver cup presented annually by Sir James Barrie.

"The Brazilian government will also pay in gold all coupons due on three loans that The Hague tribunal recently ruled on, namely, those of 1909, 1910 and 1911."

FIRST AND LAST FAMILIES PASS QUIET CHRISTMAS DAY

as an instrument of international policy.

Many Community Demonstrations.

The celebration of Christmas in the homes of the District was supplemented widely yesterday through numerous community demonstrations, led by that at the Community Christmas tree in Sherman Square, which began officially Tuesday night when President Hoover touched the electric switch that illuminated the huge tree around which 2,000 men, women and children congregated to join in the singing of carols.

Scores of Christmas dinners were distributed to the poor of Washington by the Salvation Army, and the dining halls of the Central Union Mission, the Children's Emergency Home, and the Gospel Mission were jammed with needy persons who found the spirit of the season in the special feasts which were served to them by volunteer workers.

Prisoners in the District Jail were regaled with a special menu of roast pork and all its accessories, as were those in the workhouse at Occoquan, although it was at the District reformatory at Lorton, Va., that the real Christmas menu was served, with roast turkey, cranberry sauce, and all the trimmings of a real Yuletide meal.

Hospitals Are Remembered.

A special Christmas dinner of roast pork was served at Gallinger Municipal Hospital, while the Christmas celebration at St. Elizabeths Hospital established a record.

More than 3,000 stockings filled with candy were distributed among the hospitals of the city by volunteer workers under the auspices of the Washington Federation of Churches, while workers of the Christ Child Society and other Catholic institutions performed a similar service.

Religious services were held in many churches throughout Washington, with crowds in attendance at the special Christmas services held yesterday morning at Washington Cathedral and a midnight mass at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart. The Cathedral services were broadcast throughout the United States over the Columbia network through WMAL, while the Catholic services went on the air through WRC.

Christmas Radio Programs.

Each of the city's radio stations featured special Christmas programs of carols and also divine services.

Following the lighting ceremony at a huge tree at Twelfth street and Michigan avenue northeast Christmas Eve, children and adults of Michigan Park gathered last night and sang more Christmas carols while Santa Claus plucked presents from the branches and distributed them. The tree was erected by the Michigan Park Citizens Association.

The tree will be lighted every night throughout the Yule holidays, and other ceremonies will be staged on New Year's eve and New Year's night.

Finer Spirit Abroad.

Bishop James E. Freeman, in his sermon at Washington Cathedral in the morning, characterized Christmas as the world's fellowship day and emblematic of peace to men of good will the world over, speaking in terms of a universal comradeship.

"Its whole message is one that bears upon human relationships," he declared. "It puts a new interpretation upon national and international agreements, and for the sharp competitions of life that effect divisions and cleavages, substitutes a method at once more generous and more equitable. A finer spirit is abroad in the world today. At length, after centuries of stubborn blindness, men are really coming to catch a nobler vision of life and its purpose as they turn to that time remote when Christ was born."

bound. He woke to a warning to keep quiet if he valued his life.

"I couldn't make any outcry," Combs said. "They had guns on me and had my hands and legs tied. Then they took the keys and went and got Fugate. That's all I know. There were five in my room. There muts have been 75 to 100 in the crowd."

The men did not harm the 25 other prisoners in the jail, but sought out Fugate's cell, hustled him out into the snow and drove away. The jailer's son, Louis Combs, sleeping in an upstairs room, heard the noise and gave the alarm.

A deputy sheriff fired a few shots as the crowd drove off and then search was begun, Sheriff S. J. Cockrell being aroused.

It was five hours later when Jim Butler, a farmer going out to pick fodder, heard a man praying and groaning. He summoned help and Fugate was brought to the hospital here. It was not believed that he could survive the wounds and exposure. He had been shot in the head, body and limbs and had suffered greatly from lying in the heavy snow at the bottom of a ditch. He had been hurled 20 feet from the roadway also.

Fugate, who is 25 years old, was not married, but lived with his aged father and several brothers. His quarrel with Watkins was said to have occurred over his claim that the latter failed to pay him for some coal that Fugate had dug for the lawyer. Watkins and Fugate met a week ago in a country store near here and the quarrel was renewed. Fugate shot him to death.

Watkins, who was 45, was married and had two children.

Enid, Okla., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Poison discovered today in the viscera of Joe Darnell, 22, flour mill chemist, whose body was found Monday in a ravine two blocks east of Phillips University here, today brought an announcement from Sheriff C. E. Baker that an immediate investigation will be made to determine if Darnall was murdered.

The presence of poison was reported to the sheriff today by Dr. Paul Champlin, Garfield County physician, following an autopsy. Darnell, a studious youth employed at the Pillsbury Mills here, disappeared Thursday.

Ship Passengers Spend Night Stalled in Port

New York, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—The Robert E. Lee, of the Eastern Steamship Line, with several hundred passengers bound for Boston aboard, was forced to return to Pier 19, North River, today after being anchored off City Island all night with a stripped turbine. The passengers were refunded their fares and proceeded to Boston by train.

The vessel left her pier at 5 o'clock Christmas Eve and stripped her turbines an hour later off City Island.

HELEN WILLS MOODY ON SEA HONEYMOON

Woman's Tennis Champion Takes Yule Trip Along California Coast.

PRIVATE YACHT IS USED

San Pedro, Calif., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Helen Wills Moody and her young husband, Frederick Moody, Jr., San Francisco bond salesman, were somewhere off the Southern California mainland this Christmas Day on the start of their honeymoon ocean cruise aboard the yacht Galatea.

At 10 a. m. today they slipped anchor from the pier on the California yacht club, pointed the nose of their trim craft seaward and disappeared beyond the Los Angeles harbor breakwater. They were bound for a voyage of three weeks with Santa Catalina Island, 20 miles off shore as their first objective.

Aboard the small vessel with them was the skipper, S. Edwardson, a deck hand and a cook. Moody, who is not a tenderfooth at sea, helped sail the yacht from port and he appeared as a full-fledged seaman in white duck trousers, blue shirt and yachting cap. He had two yeas' experience in the merchant marine.

His bride, famed as the woman tennis champion of the world, was in a seagoing costume of blue and white, but whether she would help sail the ship, cook in the galley, or just idle aboard, she did not say. An official of the yacht club said he understood the couple would cruise southward to Mexican waters in the vicinity of Ensenada, famous Mexican resort.

Their craft towed a rowboat indicating that fishing and an occasional landing would enter into their sea pleasures.

The couple spent last night in Hollywood at the home of friends following their arrival at Los Angeles late yesterday from Santa Barbara. They were married Monday in the bride's home city at Berkeley, Calif.

NEW CLEW IS FOUND IN EIELSON SEARCH

in connection with a huge reindeer drive now under way for the Canadian government, was reported by Pilots Dorbandt and Cope, who flew yesterday from Teller, Alaska, to search for them. The party had been forced down by a storm at an isolated point.

Trading Ship Reports.

Meanwhile word from the fur trading ship Nanuk, icebound at North Cape, to which Eielson and Borland were flying when lost, revealed that Pilots Joe Crosson and Harold Gillam had made a short flight over the snow fields near North Cape, but had returned without finding any trace of the missing fliers.

Provided the weather cleared up, they were scheduled to make another search today. They had prepared a snow house sufficiently large to protect the motor of their planes from the frosty atmosphere while warming the machines up preparatory to flights. They also had arranged to borrow fuel from the Russian ship Stavropol, icebound at North Cape, in order to continue their scouting trips.

Three large planes and six Canadian airmen, en route north on the Coast Guard cutter Chelan, were scheduled to arrive in Seward today, from where the planes will be shipped to Fairbanks, assembled and then flown to Teller to aid in the search.

Alaskan Governor Acts.

Juneau, Alaska, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—In accordance with a request from Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, Carl Theile, Acting Governor of Alaska in the absence of Gov. George A. Parks, today cabled Carl Lomen at Nome to ask for aid from the Russian icebreaker Litke and the trader ship Stavropol in the search for Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, missing in Siberia since November 9. Lomen is in charge of rescue preparations.

Seward, Alaska, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Carrying three Fairchild planes and a complement of Canadian fliers who are to engage in the search for Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and Mechanic Earl Borland, missing since early November in Siberia, the Coast Guard cutter Chelan arrived here today shortly before noon.

The Chelan entered Resurrection Bay in a blinding snowstorm and was guided to the Alaska railroad wharf by means of radio signals flashed from the Army radio station here. The work of transferring the planes to flat cars for transshipment to Fairbanks, where they will be assembled and flown to Teller, Alaska, began as soon as the cutter was docked.

Canadians to Hop Off.

From Teller the planes will hop off across Bering Strait on the 500-mile flight to North Cape, Siberia, near where Eieleson and Borland were believed to have been forced down. The Canadians expected to take off for Teller within 24 hours after they reach Fairbanks.

The Chelan left Seattle last Saturday and had been expected here either Christmas Eve or early this morning. It fought its way through heavy weather all the way North.

The Canadian fliers aboard were Capt. H. A. Oakes, in charge, Capt. T. M. "Pat" Reid, chief pilot, B. W. Broatch and Gifford Swartsman, assistant pilots, C. F. Mews and William Hughes mechanics, Maj. H. D. Deckard in charge of the expedition and the aviation corporation and A. L. Baker, a Pratt and Whitney mechanic.

Pilots in High Spirits.

The pilots were in high spirits today but seriously impressed with the work ahead. They expressed satisfaction that Pilot Joe Crosson had arrived safely at the Fur Trader ship Manuk, icebound at North Cape, to which Eilson and Boreland were flying last.

When the expedition reaches Fairbanks Capt. Oakes will turn the command over to Capt. Reid and return to Canada to prepare for an expedition into Canadian Arctic

The Chilean will return to Seattle tomorrow with the arrival of the Fairchilds planes in the North. Fliers engaged in the Eielson search will be well equipped for the undertaking. The planes are capable of carrying large supplies of reserve gasoline.

50-Mile Yule Gale Hits Seattle on Christmas

Seattle, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Christmas came to Seattle and Tacoma on the wings of a 50-mile gale out of the south, crippling communication lines and hampering shipping.

The storm struck Seattle shortly after 3 a. m., and the fire and police departments were soon swamped with calls for help. Wrecking crews of public service corporations were sent out to repair the damage. In Tacoma the roof was blown off St. Leo's Catholic Church and several plate-glass windows were crashed in.

Strangely enough Portland, Oreg., to the south, was missed by the gale, and enjoyed springlike weather.

Yuletide Ball For Cadets Is Brilliant Fete

Vice President Curtis Is Chief Dignitary at Function.

By JEAN ELIOT.

AFTER celebrating Christmas in family groups in the traditional way, nearly 1,000 guests from official and resident society came together last night at the Midshipman-Cadet Ball at the Mayflower. Vice President Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann led the important contingent of dignitaries in attendance at this fete, organized especially for the lads who are home from Annapolis and West Point for the holiday season; and there were many high ranking Army and Navy officers in the company.

When the Children's Country Home became affiliated with the Community Chest and gave up its annual ball, which had been featured on Christmas night for a score of years, this date was chosen as an appropriate time for the Midshipman-Cadet Ball, already a popular institution, and the brilliance of the fete last night proved the happiness of the choice.

Colorful military ceremonial gave a touch of the picturesque to a scene marked by an atmosphere of youthful gayety and holiday high spirits. Flags were used as decorations, with the Vice President's flag marking the box reserved for him and the chief of staff's flag, the box set aside for Gen. and Mrs. Summerall, whose station through the early part of the evening was in the receiving line. Army and Navy officers present were in full dress uniform, their gold lace and brass buttons, with the "cadet gray" and the blue of the midshipmen's uniforms, to an effect of pageantry enhanced by red, white and blue lights.

Arriving promptly at 10:30 Vice President Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Gann were met by a guard of honor from the floor committee—Col. Guy V. Henry, Lieut. Charles Saltzman, Capt. C. R. P. Rodgers and Lieut. Richard Cutts—and were escorted to their box through a lane of midshipmen and cadets, standing at attention. Groups of junior marines were also "on parade," while this ceremony was in progress.

In the receiving line with Gen. and Mrs. Summerall were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. B. Frank Cheatham, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Herbert Crosby and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Richard Leigh.

A buffet supper was served at midnight in the Chinese room.

The Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis had a box for the evening. Other box holders, most of whom entertained groups of young guests, were Representative and Mrs. Clyde Kelley, Representative and Mrs. Adam Wyant, Gen. and Mrs. Frank Keefer, Gen. and Mrs. C. C. Williams, Col. and Mrs. Guy V. Henry, Col. and Mrs. Daniel Devore, Maj. and Mrs. G. S. Patten, Commander and Mrs. Walter Jacobs, Commander and Mrs. George W. Kenyon, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dwight, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Parkhurst, Mrs. Rushmore Patterson, Mrs. Ralph Richards, Mrs. Lindsay Russell, Mrs. Wayne Wirgman.

With Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner in her box were Dr. and Mrs. Blair Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. R. Wilmer Bolling and Mr. and Mrs. William Paine Meredith. Mrs. Deming Jarves, who is hostess to the Grand Duchess Kira while she is visiting in Washington, was also a box holder. Others glimpsed in the boxes surrounding the gayly decorated ballroom were Gen. and Mrs. Harry F. Rethers, Col. and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, Capt. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, Commander and Mrs. John W. Morse, Mrs. Clarence Busch, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Carpenter and Mrs. William Wheatley.

Many dinner parties were arranged to preced the fete, at least a score of hostesses entertaining at the dinner dance in the Italian garden of the Mayflower for groups of young guests. Miss Clara Lutz was hostess there at a party for her niece, Miss Clara Bolling. Mrs. Ralph Richards entertained for Miss Betty Richards and others who had dinner parties were Gen. and Mrs. Herbert Deakyne, Mrs. James Adkins, Col. and Mrs. William G. Ball, Mr. Charles Delmar, Capt. Clifford Myers and Mrs. F. T. Bernard, of Spartanburg, S. C.; Col. and Mrs. Granville Fortescue gave a dinner before the ball for Ensign and Mrs. Thomas Massie, Miss Rion Fortescue and Miss Helena Fortescue.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*
By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion
Fashion revels in the soft, enchanting curves of the modern figure. Don't sacrifice that graceful contour by permitting your eyes to be bigger than your stomach. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When tempted to treat yourself too well, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the modern, alluringly-rounded figure.

We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. Silver Years

By Gertrude S. Trowbridge

"After the Golden Years of Youth, Come Those of Fine Silver"

WE would enjoy our minds more if we first drew out what is already there and used it, instead of waiting to experiment with the newest fashion in thought, which overloads the mind and makes it chaotic and inefficient.

Nothing of recent date is better to start the day with than an extraordinary bit of wisdom, written in Sanscrit, the oldest of Indo-European languages, by an unknown author. It has been nobly translated. Some people have never seen it and they have missed much, so I repeat it for their benefit:

Listen to the Salutation of the Dawn!
Look to this Day!
For it is life, the very life of life.
In its brief course lie all the
Varieties and realities of your existence;
The bliss of growth,
The glory of action,
The splendor of beauty;
For yesterday is but a dream
And tomorrow is only a vision,
But today, well lived, makes
Every yesterday a dream of happiness
And every tomorrow a vision of hope
Look well, therefore, to this day!
Such is the Salutation of the Dawn.

Less stately and poetic, but both inspiring and amusing, is the simple record of Father Lawrence in his suggestion of daily "Practise of the Presence of God," written in the seventeenth century. More recently, the same idea has been stressed by William Osler in his practical and delightful little book, "One Way of Life."

This also suggests the wisdom of concentrating attention upon one day at a time, without confusing retrospect or anticipation of others.

Is it not still better to further limit attention to an hour, allowing its gifts full appreciation and its allotted work freedom from entangling alliances with irrelevant ideas?

Italian Princess Observes Birthday

Youngest Daughter of Royal Pair Is 15 Years Old Today.

Rome, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—While practically all the other Italian parents were heaving sighs of relief tonight between intervals of picking up broken toys, silencing querulous youngsters, and packing them off to bed, the first family in the land—the one that lives in the Villa Savoia, near the outskirts of Rome—found that its celebration had to begin all over again.

Tomorrow Princess Maria-Francesca-Anna-Romana has her fifteenth birthday.

Princess Maria, the youngest child of King Victor and Queen Helena, was born in Rome, December 26, 1914. Birthday presents will be forthcoming from all the members of the royal house, including Crown Prince Humbert and Maria's future sister-in-law, Princess Marie-Jose of Belgium.

HONOR AND DEFENSE.

According to an apparently reliable report the effort to base a new international naval policy upon the Kellogg pact is to be abandoned because of the impossibility of devising a formula that would reconcile the pact with instrumentalities of war. If this report is not true it ought to be.

Any effort to inject into the Kellogg pact a method of bringing about concerted action intended to compel quarreling nations to keep the peace must fail. The pact was not designed for that purpose. Its author stoutly resisted the suggestions of European statesmen looking to amendments which would "put teeth" into the pact. Although it is a multilateral pact, it directly affects only an agressor and a victim of aggression, and it contains no provision that calls upon the nations to take any action whatever against an aggressor or in favor of a victim of aggression. In case of violation of the pact it becomes null and void as between the aggressor and the victim of aggression, and the latter is as free to make war as if he had never renounced it.

The consequence of faithful observance of the Kellogg pact by all nations would be universal disarmament. But since no nation at this stage of civilization is warranted in placing its entire trust in the good faith of all other nations there must be defensive armament. The acceptance of the proposition that every nation must maintain defensive armament is inconsistent with the universal pledge to renounce war. Therefore it will be wisdom on the part of the nations about to confer at London to abandon any attempt to reconcile the Kellogg pact with a scheme of naval armaments. Whether limitation, reduction, or no agreement at all should result from the conference, the nations will still retain naval forces for the purpose of defending themselves in anticipation of violation of the Kellogg pact.

The Kellogg pact rests upon honor. When honor disappears the pact disappears with it. Then a nation's ability to defend itself tells the story of its safety or survival. It would be glorious if mankind had reached the point where honor eliminated war and made armies and navies unnecessary. Pending the advent of that golden age the best that can be done is to practice honor and to guard against the occasional breaches of honor that will surely occur. But it will always be a mistake to attempt to employ the pledge of honor as a warrant for coercion and force. The Kellogg pacts sets up no tribunal of nations to sit in judgment upon other nations.

The Kellogg pact sets up a bar against aggression upon others. Defensive armament sets up a bar against aggression by others. By faithfully observing its pledge not to commit aggression and by keeping its defenses in repair the United States can maintain both honor and peace. It is not bound to deliver sermons to others as to their pledge of honor, or to join some nations in trying to compel others to keep their pledge. It is merely bound to behave itself. Its ability to defend itself is a safeguard against misbehavior by others.

VIOLENCE IN INDIA.

In spite of the prolonged delay in issuing the report of the British parliamentary commission which recently investigated the question of India's future status, this problem may come to a climax in the near future. The Indian central committee, which has been demanding dominion status by the end of this year, will meet this week, and it is feared that violence will be the result. An attempt has just been made to bomb a train carrying Viceroy and Lady Irwin. This is the third time in eighteen months that the radicals have assailed British rule by exploding bombs with intent to murder British officials.

The delay of Sir John Simon's investigating committee has not hindered the Indian central committee from laying its demands before Parliament. This body, which was appointed to cooperate with the British commission, declares for immediate dominion status. "We are convinced," the report reads, "that there is no safe half-way house between an immediate advance along the lines we have indicated and the ultimate surrender by the British government, after years of agitation and bitterness, to India's demand." In addition to dominion status they are asking for full provincial self-government in all matters except those reserved to the dominion government.

Leaders of the independence movement do not approve of the violent methods that some of the radicals are using in the attempt to destroy British rule. But the united demand for autonomy is unmistakable. It is a question that Britain can not avoid meeting, and it appears that unless some definite action is taken soon the Indian agitators may take matters into their own hands. The British government will be fortunate if it can forestall these incipient riots until the Simon commission has made its report and Parliament is ready to act.

THE WHITE HOUSE FIRE.

Christmas Eve, 1929, will be remembered in Washington as the date when the White House was threatened with destruction by fire. The hour before the Fire Department had overcome the blaze in the executive office was one of anxiety, as the peculiar construction of the windows made it extremely difficult to reach the core of the fire. But for the extraordinary efforts of the firemen the White House itself might easily have become ignited.

The cause of the fire is believed to be imperfect wiring. How this defective work could have passed muster is well worthy of official inquiry. Are the Federal buildings to be subjected to a deadly hazard resulting from slipshod workmanship? Millions are being expended upon the new buildings, which will be fireproof so far as walls and floors are concerned, but which can not be made proof against fires arising from crossed wires and short circuits. A redoubling of vigilance on the part of inspectors and engineers is advisable, since it appears that contractors can not obtain the old-fashioned workmanship that took pride in excellence.

The executive offices are too small to accommodate the President's staff. An enormous increase of work is overtaxing the present facilities. It is a question whether it would not be better to provide a separate executive building convenient to the White House, but outside of the grounds. A spacious building on Lafayette Square would afford room for expansion, while restoring the White House and its grounds to their proper use as the President's home. Now that the executive offices are put out of commission it might be well to put up with temporary quarters until an entirely new building can be constructed.

AMERICAN WORKERS.

In Europe the prosperity of America is usually attributed to the extensive resources of this country and an industrial system that reveals something of magic in its operation. Foreign countries seldom give the individual American credit for greater productivity than their own individuals. Yet therein lies the secret of the progress this country has made in recent years.

The extent of America's productive power in comparison with the remainder of the world is seldom realized, even in this country. It does not lend itself readily to measurement. But Dr. Thomas Thornton Read, professor of mining at Columbia University, has worked out a measuring chart which represents as accurately as may be estimated the productive capacity of all the major countries. His tables brought him to the conclusion that America, with one-sixteenth of the world's population, does about one-half of the world's work.

According to his measuring stick China is at the bottom of the list of productive countries, with a ratio of 1. Russia has a ratio of 2½; Japan, 3½; France, 8¼; Germany, 12; Great Britain, 18, Canada, 20, and the United States, 30. Dr. Read found that American workmen can be employed at a daily wage almost equal to the average weekly wage in Europe, because he produces from three to seven times as much. Although the average wage in this country is high, the actual cost of work is low.

Industry in the United States has brought the power of intelligence to the aid of production. The machine age is a subject of endless criticism. The French and other Europeans intimate that the only reason they have not developed mechanical power as America has is because they wish to maintain their "freedom." The average American would rather produce twice as much, with the aid of machinery, and enjoy twice as many conveniences.

There is nothing magical about American industry. The country is prosperous because of its tremendous production and its limitless capacity for work. If other countries want to learn the secret of America's industrial success let them give attention to the productive capacity of their own people.

HOSPITALS FOR VETERANS.

Although there is some reason to criticize Congress for the way it "log-rolled" amendments to provide hospitals for the States of influential members until the total requested by the Veterans' Bureau had been boosted some $4,470,000, still the mere fact that the bill will work for the benefit of veterans gives cause for rejoicing. The disabled veteran problem will be with the Nation for many years. No one can foresee the magnitude it may reach. The hospitals that will be built with the $15,950,000 appropriation carried in this bill probably will be filled in short order. It is not unlikely, even, that ere many years have passed it will be necessary to consider further extensive hospital building plans. It is for this reason that the suggestion made by President Hoover in signing the bill is of particular importance. He said:

> I have been very glad to sign the bill authorizing the construction over a term of years of further hospitals for war veterans. The load seems likely still further to increase, and it is desirable that we should know the extent of it and the policies which should be pursued. We are also in need of more coordination between the different Government agencies engaged in hospitalization. With view to an exhaustive examination of the subject I have asked Gen. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, to place the whole question before the medical council of the bureau for early study and report.

The load will increase in two respects. Primarily, as age creeps on the veterans of the late war, their disabilities will become more manifest. In addition, as time goes on it will be found less and less practicable or possible to require veterans to prove the service connection of their disability. The day will be reached when the Government will have to care for all indigent veterans of the World War just as it must now provide for veterans of other wars. More than twice as many men were engaged in the World War as in the Civil War, and the World War veteran problem, because of the complexity of maiming weapons used in 1918, is bound to be more than twice as great as the Civil War veteran problem.

There is need for a comprehensive study of the problem. Such a study should consider the possibility of coordination of activity of the several bureaus having to do with the administration of veteran relief, particularly in view of the fact that as the burden of World War relief increases, the burden of relief for soldiers of other wars will decrease.

The woman who fainted when she learned that she had entertained the famous gangster, Fred Burke, is evidently not accustomed to distinguished visitors.

In certain sections of China, American war songs are said to have become popular as wedding marches, which proves that the Chinese have a keen sense of fitness.

Fashion experts assert that fur muffs are destined to return to popularity and in view of their availability for carrying concealed weapons we shouldn't be surprised.

MONT PELEE

From the London Times.

Telegrams from the West Indies tell of signs of restlessness in the volcanoes of Martinique; and any threat of serious outbreak there must cause grave misgivings, for the eruption of Mont Pelee in 1902 was, perhaps, the most horrible calamity that has ever fallen upon mankind. It was like no previous known eruption, so that volcanologists invented a new name for it—the "Pelean type." From a flow of lava, except for those who are close by on the steep slope of the volcano, there is generally time and opportunity to escape. Pelee—it is the name of the Hawaiian volcano-goddess—gave neither time nor chance. The first thing thrown up seems to have been a torrent of boiling black mud, which was immediately followed, if not accompanied, by a dense cloud of superheated and suffocating gases, loaded with incandescent dust and volcanic sand, composed of finely triturated crystalline minerals, which, traveling through the air with immense velocity, descended on the earth like a burning avalanche. It is estimated that there were several billions of tons of this dreadful compost. The few eye-witnesses who were near enough to see it and survived described the cloud as being brownish-purple in color, shot through with vivid lightning flashes. Some of the dust carried as much as 2,000 miles to eastward; but it was on the immediate vicinity of the mountain, on the town and harbor of St. Pierre and for a dozen miles or so to sea, that the full horror of the thing broke. No human being could breathe the scorching gas with its charge of incandescent dust and live. Beneath the awful canopy must have been total blackness, except as it might be irradiated by a lightning flash or by the red glow of the burning matter before it cooled. As it fell on the ships in harbor, they either broke into flames or sank by mere weight of the avalanche: in any case, every soul was dead before the end came. In the town the darkness shrouded such scenes of terror and agony as can not be imagined. Houses gave no protection, for the gases leaked in everywhere. The glass of windows was fused and all woodwork burst into flames; and still the pitiless deluge went on until streets were choked to the height of where the second stories had been, and inside the shells of houses the mass mounted to the wall-tops; and buried under that hideous pall were between 30,000 and 40,000 people. Within what was probably a matter of minutes only, St. Pierre was a cemetery; nor was any attempt made afterwards to exhume any of the bodies.

Besides the vessels already moored in the harbor—and it has never been known how many they were—one ship, the British steamer Roddam of Scrutton, had just come in and dropped anchor. Somehow—nobody knows how—the anchor cable parted, and, with steam still up, she was able to get out and limped into St. Lucia with all her woodwork burned and the dead bodies of seventeen of her crew. Similarly on land there was one chamber into which death did not penetrate—an underground dungeon in the gaol. And here one solitary prisoner was confined, to be subsequently rescued alive but in the last stage of exhaustion after four days without food. A few survivors, not from the town itself, but from the fringes of the storm area, were picked up, off isolated rocks or clinging to floating wreckage, by a French cruiser on the following day. It is unlikely that ever in the history of the human race so many people died so horrible a death within a like space of time. Nor is the horror materially relieved by the fact that among sailors the water front at St. Pierre was commonly spoken of as the wickedest and most lawless spot on the civilized globe.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

SANTA PASSES.

Well, it was a Merry Christmas, of that fact there is no doubt.
The little house proclaims it for the toys are strewn about.
From the break of day till bedtime
there was laughter in the place.
But I fancied that I noticed something curious in her face.
In the midst of the excitement there would come a wistful pause
And I somehow have the notion that's the last of Santa Claus.

Down the years we've had him with us.
Every Merry Christmas Day.
Santa Claus has paid his visit in the good, old-fashioned way.
For when Buddy rose to boyhood,
little Janet came along,
But I somehow have the notion she suspects there's someth'ng wrong.
For I thought that I detected in her conduct now and then
A break in her devotion to the jolliest of men.

She hung her little stocking by the fireplace as of old,
And she gave a cheer for Santa, but it lacked the ring of gold,
And though Christmas Day was merry,
I began to realize
That our lovely little baby now is growing very wise,
And I can't help feeling saddened and regretful, just because I am sure our house last Christmas saw the end of Santa Claus.

A Hero Is an Ordinary Man With a Prejudiced Biographer.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

GREAT men of the past are not known to us as they were, but as the poets and artists have pictured them.

That Jacob who ruled as prime minister of Egypt is known as a righteous man, a loyal and forgiving brother and a wise counselor who saved a people from starvation.

Save them he did, but at a terrible price. He was the most heartless profiteer in all history—a multiplied Shylock who fattened his master by stripping the destitute.

For seven fat years he required the people to save and deliver their surplus to the government; and when the lean years came he sold them their own again—taking money in exchange while they had money, taking their lands when money was gone, and at last requiring them to surrender themselves as slaves.

There is no greater infamy in the story of government.

Jesus of Nazareth is pictured as a man almost effeminate in softness, but the picture does him great injustice.

The gentle Jesus? Yes, for all strong men are gentle. The Prince of Peace? Of course, for all sane men counsel peace. But there was no weakness in him.

Have you ever driven nails or sawed boards for an hour? Carpentry is hard work. It builds muscle. And while Jesus was learning his trade, and living the simple, outdoor life of his time and class, he was developing a body that could endure a fast of 40 days without breaking.

And when he braided a whip of bull hide and drove the dirty money changers from the temple of the living God, it was a strong man with the thews of a fighter and the heart of a lion who overthrew their tables, whipped the whole snarling, howling mass of them and drove them pell-mell into the street.

That was no job for a soft man.

And soft men do not go to a slow and agonizing death without whining for mercy.

The Moses who persuaded Pharoah was not an alien patriarch, but a polished gentleman of the royal household. Napoleon, greatest of Frenchmen, was an Italian who never learned to speak French well. George Washington was not a faultless saint, but a human man who lost money at cards and made his own liquor.

Call the roll of the great and they appear as popular myths. To know them as they were you must lay aside their idealized portraits and examine the things they did.

MARTIN PANZER.

NOT SO WICKED.

Several cities in the East and in the Middle West wanted to be the seat of the National Government, according to the Pathfinder, and in the past they have considered themselves unlucky, and possible unfairly treated, at not having been chosen as the National Capital. It is quite likely they are feeling differently about it now, especially if they have taken the trouble to read the speeches of those representatives who seem to take a peculiar joy in making speeches about the terrible, the rotten conditions of the Capital. Being privileged—not responsible in the ordinary way for what they say—they do not have to be careful of their statements, and they are not. There is usually a man, sometimes two, in each house who specializes in hunting up charges to broadcast against the Capital. Since the great majority of representatives are unaware of anything terrible—even after these specialists have made their inflammatory charges—it must be concluded that Washington is denounced because it is the Capital, and because the denouncers are in it and do not have to weigh their words.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Fiscal Relations of Federal and District Governments Should Be Studied and Adjusted on Business-like Basis.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial on the Cramton bill should be read by every resident of the District of Columbia. We do not want any such nonsense, what we want and demand is justice, not humbug. We are absolutely tired of guesswork in our affairs. What we want and demand as our right is a committee of experts to go fully into this matter between ourselves and the Federal Government and have the matter put on a just basis for all future time.

As it is now we honestly believe we are paying a penalty, but whether we are or not we want to be sure. We are getting somewhat tired of people from different sections telling us we are pets of the Federal Government. It is high time this important matter should be put in a just and businesslike basis, so that we can prove to those who think differently that we are meeting our obligations as citizens and that we are neither wards nor pets. Knighthood of Youth Program, Fully Carried Out, Will Solve the Problem of Character Training.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that the Knighthood of Youth program of the National Child Welfare Association, which The Post has introduced in Washington just about solves the problem of character building in youth. I hope it will be pretty generally tried out. Much depends on that. If the fathers and mothers of the city would only visualize the growth of their children four or five years ahead, that growth being directed by means of the Knighthood of Youth behavior chart, I feel sure they would all join the movement. In that case, when the young children of today are old enough to enter the higher grades in the public schools, the work of school officials would be made easy so far as character training is concerned.

T. W. BEARD.

Who Are Included in Senator Borah's Denunciation of "the Present Personnel" of Prohibition Enforcement?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To whom does Senator Borah refer when he asserts that "with the present personnel nothing will be accomplished" in enforcing prohibition? Does he mean Hoover? Does he mean Mellon? Does he mean Attorney General Mitchell? Does he mean Dr. Doran? Does he include them all, or does he include some and exclude others?

I wish Senator Borah would name names. Then we would know how much weight to attach to his words. It is idle to speak of "the present personnel" if Senator Borah does not include everybody, from top to bottom. E. PLURIBUS UNUM.

Dr. Tindall Speaks for Federal Employes in Thanking President Hoover.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Without imputing anything derogatory to anybody, and wishing The Post every felicity of the season, I feel to express the opinion that the kindly thoughtfulness which inspired the closing of the departments today is the finest manifestation of character that has come out of the White House since that structure was blessed by the noble humanity of Abraham Lincoln. WILLIAM TINDALL.

SUBMARINES.

Nothing much is likely to come of the agitation to get rid of the submarine, observes the Regina Daily Post. Nothing much is likely to come of the efforts to get rid of poison gas and saw-tooth bayonets; in fact, there is an element of pitiful comedy in the attitude of man toward weapons of terror in warfare. A bayonet is meant to kill a man, to make a good job of killing him, to rip him up in the most approved manner, and if a saw-tooth bayonet will do the work more effectively than a plain one it appears to have that factor in its favor.

Poison gas is used to kill off the enemy in warfare; it has the same objective as a machine gun. If a charge of poison gas will kill 1,000 men where a machine gun would kill but 100 the odds are all in favor of the gas.

Warfare is the organized business of killing and the more effective the agencies of slaughter the shorter the war should be. Submarines were invented for the purpose of licking the other fellow and if they are an effective means of putting him out of business they will be used in warfare, all conventions and agreements to make warfare nice to the contrary.

Why waste time arguing about what weapons two peoples use against each other when they go out on organized lines to kill each other off? If there is to be killing in warfare, let there be plenty of it in order that the fighting be ended with the least possible delay.

If the nations are serious in their desire for peace they will concentrate on methods to get rid of war rather than trifling with rules to make the business of killing a little more polite.

WORDS.

Prof. Ramsay, head of the English department at Missouri University, says the vocabulary of the average university student runs from 50,000 to 70,000 words. One can appreciate this extraordinary equipment by recalling that Shakespeare did all his stuff with 28,000 words, that Homer charmed the Hellenic world with a much skimpier allowance and that George M. Cohan, lineal descendant, perhaps, of Aristophanes, probably never has had 1,000 words in the bank in his life, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. If Prof. Ramsay is right the current collegian has the raw material for masterpieces to blow the bards sublime out of the picture. One may wonder, however, how many of those dashing thesaurians carry in their portmanteaus what Mr. Hoover has just described as "the good old word—work." If they have, there's no stopping them. If they haven't, there's no starting them. Meantime, we are accepting Prof. Ramsay's figures with thousands of reservations.

DR. COOK FILLS OUT PAROLE APPLICATION

Noted Explorer Will Plead for Liberty When Prison Board Meets.

RECORD IS UNBLEMISHED

Leavenworth, Kans., Dec. 25.—(N. Y.W.N.S.)—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, explorer, has filled out an application and is scheduled to come up for parole at the hearing of the January meeting of the United States Penitentiary Parole Board. Along with 800 other prisoners he will be allowed to tell why he feels that he should be granted his freedom.

Dr. Cook was received at the Federal Penitentiary April 6, 1925, and he has served one-third of his fourteen years and nine months term, which allows him to be heard for parole. Since he has never broken any rules, he is in line for parole on his behavior record.

All the other prisoners convicted at the same trial of conspiracy to use the mails to defraud were paroled three years ago. His sentence is the longest ever given a prisoner on a similar charge at this penitentiary.

Judge's Parole Futile.

Eighteen months ago the now presiding judge in the Fort Worth district issued an order granting Dr. Cook freedom on a judge's parole. It was finally held that a judge could not grant a parole after a prisoner was placed in the penitentiary on the ground that the judge had lost all jurisdiction over him.

Judge John M. Killits of Toledo, O., who was sent to Texas to try Dr. Cook, has opposed cutting down his term until now. It is reported that Killit's attitude has changed and he favors granting parole. The United States Attorney for the Fort Worth district is reported to have written in favor of granting parole.

Dr. Cook is not standing up well under confinement and his friends feel that he would not live to serve out the full term of his sentence. All the prison officials and prisoners want to see him make parole.

Edited Prison Publication.

When first brought in, Dr. Cook was assigned to the penitentiary hospital and placed in charge of the night shift. A year later the editorship of the New Era, the monthly prison magazine, was added to his duties. He wrote many articles on scientific and travel subjects that were copied in prison and daily newspapers. Dr. Cook was made superintendent of the prisoners' night school three years ago and he has helped to teach many inmates to read and write. When it was announced that he would lecture practically all the prisoners left their cells voluntarily to hear him.

He urged other prisoners to obey the rules and had no part in or sympathy with mutinies or riots. He counseled prisoners to accept conditions as they found them without complaining.

Dr. Cook has no money to pay the $12,000 fine against him, but that cuts no figure in granting parole. He has offers for articles on his travels and the principal points in his career. If paroled it will hold over him for five years, during which time has to report to the prison officials on his earnings and how he spends them.

Seidman crawled from the wreckage uninjured. He told the police that the other auto was occupied by two men. Witnesses were unable to obtain the number of the license tags on the fleeing car.

20 Are Hurt as Auto Runs Into Yule Tree

Jamestown, N. Y., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Twenty persons were injured tonight, some seriously, at Cherry Creek, near here, when the automobile Stanley Rankowiski, 55, was driving, ploughed through a line of children waiting to receive presents at an outdoor community Christmas celebration. Mayor G. Sheldon Frost, of the village, suffered a fractured leg. Most of those injured were small children.

Rankowiski was caught and placed in the county jail. The village was in a turmoil after the occurrence, the office of the only physician in the place being jammed with injured.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

THERE is real comfort in the realization that when all is said and done, when the real need arises, the men of the House forget their bitternesses and act in perfect accord. No partisanship manifests itself. There are 435 members of the House, five of them women, and there are as many different minds; but when the test comes they respond as one.

We refer to the manner in which the House respoded to the President's prosperity call. Without a dissenting voice the House approved it, and not only did it do that but when it was asked to authorize an increase of $200,000,000 in the public building program, it spoke as might Amos and Andy, "Sho, Sho."

This will to cooperate in times of stress is heartening. The ordinary citizen realizes that what he hears about party bickerings, about the sniping of the President, has been greatly exaggerated.

* * * *

IN times of stress enmities and animosities go by the board. The members of Congress grow in stature right before one's eyes. Was there any questioning of the building program? Did the Democrats try to make capital of it? No, indeed.

Even the much advertised watch dogs of the treasury were willing to make the sacrifice. Whether it was a proposal by a Republican President was a matter of no note.

How about the agricultural bloc of the House, of which one hears so much, or of the radical Wisconsin group? The leaders did not have to press any of them into line. They were able to see the point right off.

The public building program was to be increased by $300,000,000 in the interest of thine prosperity campaign. The only question that had to be asked; the only doubt about the matter at all, was ,"Do I get a new building in my town?"

And when Chairman Elliott of the public buildings and grounds committee gave assurance that every town in the country with a population of 20,000 or so would be taken care of, every member said, "Let 'er go; we are for prosperity just as sure as you live."

* * * *

IT has been many years since the House members have had a whack at just such a thing as this. The old pork barrel was not so well filled in the days of President Coolidge. Every time one turned around and made the most simple of requests it was economy, rigid curtailment of expenditures, with him.

So it is not so strange that the 435 members of the House should be so united, that there would be such a chorus of ayes, such a manifestation of every man putting his shoulder to the wheel to help the President, when he proposes such a building program as he did.

And just to show that their hearts are in the right place, that they want to cooperate with Mr. Hoover to the fullest extent, there is a $125,000,000 rivers and harbors bill coming along.

HOOVER OPENS TEMPORARY OFFICES IN STATE BUILDING

mately a new and larger building will be needed, but feels that this is not the time to ask for one.

His sole concern now is to keep things moving, to maintain the high speed efficiency which he had gradually worked up in the White House.

Rising early, as is his custom, the President yesterday played a brisk game of medicine ball and then made an inspection tour of his wrecked office building.

Accompanied by Five.

He was accompanied by the five men who had joined him in his workout, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, Mark Sullivan, the newspaper correspondent; Alexander H. Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board; Lieut. Comdr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, and Mr. Richey.

Outwardly the building did not seem to have suffered much. About all that attracted attention were the smudges of smoke, the spots where the stucco had been chopped away, and the shattered windows.

It was not until the President and his friends got inside that they could see how much havoc had really been wrought. Where there had been freshly painted ceilings there are now charcoal beams; chandeliers had been shattered, and the floors were covered with hunks of scarred wood and pools of water.

Hoover Office Hardest Hit.

The office of the President had been hardest hit. The ceiling was wrecked. One could stand in the center of the room and see the sky through several gaping holes. Water and debris were everywhere. In a little closet just outside stood a tiny safe with its door ajar. The valuable papers that it had contained had been retrieved the night before.

Although the firemen still were at work and debris was falling everywhere, President Hoover showed no fear as he moved about the shambles. He wore a heavy overcoat and a soft hat, but no overshoes. As a result the water certainly must have penetrated to his feet.

Frequently, the firemen shouted warnings that timbers might fall below, but the President insisted on making a thorough inspection.

Akerson's Office Less Damaged.

The office of Secretary Akerson, which adjoins that of the President, was not so badly damaged. The walls and the ceiling were scarred and water-soaked, but mechanics should be able to restore it in much less time than will be required on the President's workshop.

The office of Secretary Walter Newton, which is in the front of the building, was no more damaged than was Akerson's. Everything had been moved from this room except a collection of books. Included were "The Federalist" papers of Alexander Hamilton; "Tammany Hall," by M. A. Werner, and "Herbert Hoover," a biography by Will Irwin.

The table in the Cabinet room was still in its place yesterday, but the chairs had been carried out the night before.

Everything of Value Saved.

As a matter of fact, virtually everything of great value was saved. What papers and documents were destroyed, it was explained, could easily be spared.

The President's papers were rescued by Akerson, Richey, Allan Hoover and others, while the Executive stood on the bridgelike west terrace and directed them.

One of the first things Akerson carried out was the large portrait of President Hoover that hung above the fireplace. Richey saved his treasured etchings of Hoover, Washington and Lincoln.

Own Belongings Saved.

Akerson and the other aids all salvaged whatever of value they kept in their own offices.

How Mrs. Hoover broke the news about the fire to the children she had at the Christmas Eve party was told yesterday by Mr. Akerson. The children were the sons and daughters of the President's secretaries and aids.

When Ike Hoover, the head usher at the White House, came into the dining room and whispered to the President and the other men, they all got up and left the room.

Party Goes On.

Mrs. Hoover also was told, but she was determined that the children's party should go on. She kept the Marine Band playing steadily so as to drown out the noise of the fire engines. Finally, after the presents had been distributed, she let the children in on the secret.

"I suppose you wonder where your fathers went," she said. "Well, their offices have been on fire. Now do you children want to see the fire?"

The children screamed a joyous affirmative, and then followed their tall host out on the west terrace to see the firemen in action.

Last night President and Mrs. Hoover entertained the Cabinet members and their children.

Historical Documents Clutter Hoover Lawn

(Associated Press.)

Documents of historic, if not of intrinsic value, were scattered over the White House lawns after the fire in the executive offices.

Some of these documents dated back more than a half of a century, and included original letters to and from Presidents during history-making periods of the American republic.

One of them, found on the pavements, was a petition to "James A. Garfield, President-elect of the United States of America," expressing the opinion that Republican members of the Indiana Legislature would be glad if the application for government post of Charles Case would be considered. At that time Case was described as having been a faithful public officer and a member of Congress "more than 40 years ago."

The details as to what was lost and what was saved from the old files will be a matter of checking for the White House clerical staff.

Red-Letter Days Easy For One Newspaper Man

If eEddie Bratturd, Washington newspaper man fails to remember any of these little anniversaries that wives are so prone to recall, it will be because he has a mighty short memory. All of the events in his married career happened on holidays, including the birth of a second son yesterday to his wife, Mrs. Ruth Bratburd, at George Washington Hospital.

Eddie and Mrs. Eddie, the former Miss Ruth Baumbach, were married at Rockville on Memorial Day, 1925. Their first child, Eddie, Jr., was born on Labor Day, 1927. The mother and the new baby are doing well, the hospital authorities report.

became normal. She is now recovering her strength rapidly.

Christmas wasn't so cheerful aside from the carol singing and special dinners served at the hospital. So far as could be learned she did not receive any letters or packages from her home in California. Through a group of Washington church women she was given a "stocking" filled with candy, oranges and other things.

Mrs. Ruggles' father, the Rev. George Brewster, of Selma, Calif., has not communicated with the girl, but through his wife Mrs. Ruggles was sent the family's hopes that she recover.

Police to Be in Force On New Year's Night

There will be no trifling with the majesty of the law on New Year's Evening. That much was settled yesterday when Captain of Detectives Emerson revoked the leave of all members of the detective bureau for the night of December 31.

The boys will all be on special detail and as such they will patrol all paces of public gatherings with a tripe sided view—one for police inspectors, a second for outrageous conduct, and a third for possible infractions by themselves of the police manual.

Survivor Relates Yacht Explosion

F. Lyngdorf, Chief Steward of Carnegie, Arrives to Make Report.

F. Lyngdorf chief steward of the Carnegie Institution yacht Carnegie, which was wrecked near the Apia Harbor on the Samoa coast on November 29, was in Washington yesterday prepared to make a formal report of the explosion and the subsequent loss of the vessel, which was on a scientific voyage around the world.

The blast was caused by sparks from a motor in the engine room after the latter had been filled with gasoline fumes, the steward said. Luckily a motorboat came to the rescue before the yacht sank, but the explosion cost two lives and the serious injury of four other men.

Lyngdorf was the man to dive into the ocean and pull aboard Capt. J. P. Ault, who was blown from the deck; but the skipper succumbed before he could be taken to a hospital. Tony Kolar ("The Kid"), a helper of Lyngdorf, was hurled high into the air and killed instantly. There were 24 men on board.

Man, Burke Double, Is Freed From Jail

Data on Fingerprints Show Chicago Gangster Is Still Free.

Nogales, Ariz., Dec. 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The man arrested here and held as Fred Burke, Chicago gangster, was released tonight after Sheriff J. H. Patterson had received fingerprints from Chicago and compared them. The man had given his name, and had been docketed as J. F. Barton.

Sheriff Patterson had said that Barton tallied exactly with photographs sent out from Chicago in police circulars. Meanwhile, however, Deputy Commissioner Stege in Chicago had expressed a doubt that the man held in Nogales was the one wanted in the St. Valentine's Day massacre in Chicago.

Sheriff Patterson first arrested the man now known not to be Burke on a suspicion of liquor running. He had been obliged to free him of that charge, and had then rearrested him on the belief that Barton was Burke.

Youth Shot Dead In Christmas Row

High Schoolboy Held After Boisterous eClebration Ends Fatally.

Sharon, Pa., Dec. 24 (A.P.).—James Gill, 18, of Sharon, was shot and killedin a store just across the Ohio-Pennsylvania State line from here early today by Peter Nicastri, 14, a high school pupil.

Police said the shooting occurred when Gill and three companions visited the store conducted by Sam Nicastri, father of the boy, and became boisterous in their celebration of Christmas Eve. Peter Nicastri, it was said, picked up a revolver lying near the store cash register and sought to drive the invaders from the place. Gill grappled with him in efforts to obtain the revolver and the boy fired twice.

Gill's body was taken to Warren, Ohio, pending an inquest tomorrow. The Nicastri boy was released on his recognizance.

Assassin in Argentina Acted Alone, Say Police

Buenos Aires, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Police investigation into the attempt on the life of President Hipolito Yrigoyen yesterday satisfied them that Gualberto or Gualterio Marinelli acted alone and not as the agent of an organized band. On the other hand, it appeared that Marinelli, who was killed by shots of the presidential escort, had planned his attempt at assassination carefully.

It was found he had bought a revolver some time ago and had practiced marksmanship with it on several occasions. It also was established that he had appeared daily near the presidential palace and peeped into the gateway to observe the door of the house.

Firemen Subdue Blaze In Hold of Freighter

New York, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Two fire boats and two engine companies were required to check a fire in the hold of the Cosulich Line freighter Lucia C. at her pier in Brooklyn today.

The fire was discovered just before noon but was not brought under control until about 5 p. m. The damage was mainly to the cargo. The ship arrived yesterday from Mediterranean ports.

REFRIGERATION is a year round NECESSITY

Every General Electric Refrigerator is hermetically sealed.

IT may be chilly outside but there's a steaming stove in the kitchen. And it's the temperature indoors that counts.

When the temperature in your refrigerator rises above 50 degrees, foods deteriorate. If you throw them away they are a wasteful loss. But if you eat them they may endanger your family's health.

The General Electric Refrigerator automatically keeps your food safely below 50 degrees. It makes a generous supply of ice cubes and has an accessible freezing regulator. Its cabinet is all-steel and warp-proof.

No other refrigerator has all its mechanism hermetically sealed in a steel casing, and permanently oiled. Come in and ask about our conveniently spaced payment plan.

If you like really good music tune in on the General Electric Hour broadcast every Saturday evening.

A SMART woman was noted at the Ritz the other day wearing this swagger frock of novelty silk crepe in exquisite plum coloring with shadow dots.

The jabot frill was caught at left shoulder with gardenia. It just fell in soft ripples at left side of bodice in most becoming flattering fashion.

This fascinating subdued tones that offered such a marvelous change to vivid colors, made its wearer appear decidedly individual.

It is a dress, too, that can be worn for street, thus making it an economical choice.

The bodice is slightly bloused in all-around styling that emphasizes the flat hips achieved through wide girdle that is fitted with darts at right side that is cut quite deep. It assumes a sharp diagonal line both front and back, with ends shirred and caught at left hip.

The skirt shows interesting fulness in all-around box plaits that hang smartly straight only to flare in motion.

The sleeves are gathered into narrow wrist bands. Round neckline is collarless.

Style No. 8144, that is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust, can be copied exactly with five yards of 39-inch material with three-eighths yard of 20-inch contrasting for the woman of average figure.

The skirt, cut in three sections, is seamed and pressed into box plaits and attached to two-piece bodice that has been seamed at sides and shoulders, is practically all there is to hte making of this attractive dress.

Black canton crepe, Java brown crepe satin and bottle green faille silk crepe other delightful ideas.

For a Lucille Lorraine pattern of this model send 15 cents to Style Bureau, Washington Post, 259 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Mrs. Schutt Gains In Battle for Life

Three Blood Transfusions Help Mother of Two, Is Report.

Strengthened by three blood transfusions, Mrs. Rose Schutt, mother of two young children, was making a gain in her battle for her life at Gallinger Hospital yesterday.

During Christmas Day, Mrs. Schutt was blessed by a slight improvement, it was learned, but her recovery is by no means certain, physicians said. The woman's life was despaired of until her husband offered two blood transfusions, and a third was given by an anonymous donor. Forty persons offered to give their blood to save the woman. Another transfusion may be necessary today, and in this case one of the other contributors will be selected, it was learned.

John Schutt, unemployed husband of the woman, and his two young children, were considerably cheered yesterday by the news that the mother was slightly improved. They also received a number of gifts from sympathizers throughout the city.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Actually there is no such thing as "unlimited parking" on Washington streets. There always is a limit of 18 hours upon which any car owner may leave his car standing on any street in the city.

Example: A motorist parks his car in front of his home on an outlying street at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The next morning he rides to work with a neighbor, leaving his machine in the same spot. By the time he returns that evening at 5 o'clock he has violated the traffic regulations. The car has been there 24 hours; the limit is 18.

To the Theater Going Public of Washington:

Please consider this as an appeal to your entertainment intelligence. Never since the successful Jimmy Cooper and his wonderful BLACK and WHITE REVIEW, which has often played to capacity success at this theater, have we been able to offer a worthy successor of which we could personally feel that we were not exaggerating. BUT the time has arrived and I personally lay myself open to criticism WHEN I state that those that attend MID-NITE show tonight will see the greatest colored organization ever to appear in Washington in conjunction with the finest white show.

Believe me and see a wonderful entertainment.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

THE trade press of late has lashed itself into another nervous frenzy over the most recent demand of Canon William Sheafe Chase that the motion picture industry in general, and Will H. Hays in particular, be made the subject of a searching investigation by the Congress of the United States. It seems to me that the good Canon Chase, referred to by one irate commentator as "the apostolic nuisance of these United States," is taken rather more seriously than his official position would seem to warrant.

To be sure, he wears a high-sounding title. If I remember it correctly, the position which the Rev. Chase holds is "secretary of the Federal Motion Picture Council in America, Inc." By every sound and implication, this ought to be an organization of tremendous membership and scope. As a matter of fact, when its grand mass meeting, or convention, or whatever it was, was called for this city about a year ago, the attendance was so meager that the conclave was looked upon as a complete bust, as we say over the coffee.

Gov. Carl E. Milliken, secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., sizes it up succinctly in these words:

"The plain truth of the matter is that Canon Chase is a leader without an army. The Federal Motion Picture Council in America, Inc., of which Canon Chase is general secretary, called a 'great national rally' in Washington in the fall of 1928. Approximately 35 persons attended the culminating banquet and several of those were phychologists who were observing in the interest of science."

So let's fire the Canon and stop worrying about it!

Now that Christmas is out of the way and the bills all paid (I am laughing), and last night's advance midnight showing of the Warner Bros. "Show of Shows" is over with, the boys all seem to be centering their thoughts and their plans on New Year's Eve. I am beginning to suspect that there will be a special New Year's Eve midnight show at every downtown theater in town next Tuesday night. At some, the regular bill will be the attraction—with a few appropriate trimmings, no doubt—while at others entirely new programs may be assembled for this one special performance. It is at the RKO-Keith Theater, I believe, where this idea is being given the most serious consideration, and it is here, too, by the way, that the midnight show will be a reserved seat event. At the Palace, on the other hand, it will be "first come, first served," meaning "seated," of course.

Well, it just goes to show. After devoting eleven months to the painstaking incubation of a great idea for a Christmas card, examining blueprints, perfecting color schemes and the like, something went awry, as the guy said, somewhere along the line from the art department to the printer and back again. The idea, as I say, was masterful; the original copy was oke.; the stock on which the job was to be printed was elegant and in perfect taste; it was only Christmas Eve, so there was plenty of time!

Yet, when delivery was made of the finished job, I took one anguished look, heaved the whole sorry mess into the ash can, kept for that purpose in the palatial suite occupied by Mr. Daly, Mr. Cahill and me, and fainted dead away.

Not to be bested by any such untoward circumstances, however, after the pint of restorative had been entirely consumed the old Spartan courage of the Bells came to my rescue and what threatened to be a bearish Christmas card market was speedily converted into a complete bull victory, with noticeably heartening effect upon Secretary Mellon, old Col. Frank P. Morse, Roger Babson and the rest of the boys.

There was a crepe hanger over at the postoffice, though. After sitting up all night pasting envelopes and licking postage stamps that the Government had thoughtfully tinctured with asafetida, and then doing the cards up into bundles for local delivery, out-of-town and air mail for the Coast, this lad at the window greeted me with, "Thanks, mister, but I can tell you right now they haven't got a Chinaman's chance of being delivered." As if I had asked him!

Anyhow, if you don't receive yours until along about Lincoln's birthday, you'll understand.

While there can be no gainsaying the oversize dimensions of the large screen upon which occasional flashes are being thrown at the Palace, it must be said that the mere enlarging of the image pictured on the standard width of film does not constitute the wide-angle photography and projection upon which the fame of "Magnafilm," for example, has been based.

The celluloid strip upon which the new wide-angle photography is registered is twice as wide as any that can be accommodated in any projection equipment in the Capital of which I am aware. There is no suggestion of depth, or third dimension, in the enlarged views thrown upon the big screen at the Palace. On the contrary, the enlargement of the image has the effect of exaggerating whatever imperfections may have existed in the photography as originally printed on the standard film and so diminishing, rather than augmenting, the illusion of reality.

It is still my impression that Washington is too long in getting a glimpse of the third-dimensional pictures recorded on a double width of film. Mr. Fox is making them right along and what does he think we are, a red-headed stepchild, or something?

Irving Berlin has composed songs and lyrics for talking pictures, theme songs for synchronized films, popular ditties dedicated to screen stars. Now he will take his place on United Artists distinguished roster as a full-fledged producer. The arrangement, which will take Berlin to Hollywood within a fortnight, was made with Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, who will finance the Berlin films, of which the first will be "Upstairs and Down." This is the culmination of an intimate friendship that began as far back as the days when Izzy Baline was a singing waiter at "Nigger Mike" Salter's on the Bowery and Joe Schenck was a budding pharmacist in a Chatham Square drug store in New York.

Unless that's it clear down in the toe of the stocking, I didn't get that Lincoln sedan.

RKO-KEITH

"THE VAGABOND LOVER." RKO talking, singing and dancing picture, starring Rudy Vallee, supported by Sally Blane and Marie Dressler. Story by Joseph Ashmore Creelman; directed by Marshall Neilan. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon.

A fair appraisal of this tuneful film play demands that it be approached wholly from the viewpoint of a medium for the exploitation of the saxophoning and the crooning of Rudy Vallee, not as a picture that might survive without him. The story is of no importance, whatever, save as it serves the useful purpose of affording opportunity for frequent introductions of the star and his Connecticut Yankees and a magnificent bit of clowning by Marie Dressler. It concerns a group of amateur instrumentalists who are mistaken for Ted Grant, the world's greatest and most famous jazz band leader, and his boys, by a select coterie of Long Island charity bazaarists. When the deception is discovered, the lads escape jail by an eyelash—belonging to Sally Blane, as the girl with whom Rudy falls in love—and finally are booked for the big time when the real Ted Grant overhears them play.

Those who have heard Rudy Vallee in the flesh will find his voice hardened and sharpened somewhat by the process of recording and amplification and much of the sobbing quality gone. The microphone does that sometimes. Vallee, from the screen, is just a good average balladist and a saxophonist of substantially equal merit. His orchestra is well trained and their contributions to the film are by no means the least of its attractions. It is just as well not to bring up the matter of Mr. Vallee's acting, or Sally Blane's either, as far as that goes. To be sure, there is little enough for them to do beyond reciting a few lines that are none too pungent, so I dare say story requirements are fully met by their conspicuously placid performances.

It is Marie Dressler who is the life of the party. This veteran comedienne, by sheer power of personality and a humorous endowment that the stage can not match, offers a tremendously amusing caricature of a society dowager perplexed by the manifold problems of staging a charity show for the orphans. Nella Walker as a rival committeewoman offers a poised and beautiful foil for Miss Dressler's more robust methods. Charles Sellon adds to the fun, in which, by the way, Mr. Vallee and Miss Blane alone seem to be deficient among all the members of the cast, by his broad burlesque of the chief of the village police department.

Among the numerous songs sprinkled through the action are "A Little Kiss Each Morning," "I Love You, I Need You," "Then I'll be Reminded of You" and "If You Were the Only Girl and I Were the Only Boy." During the scenes at the garden fete a large and graceful dancing ensemble is pictured with extraordinarily effective lighting and photographic skill. The recording throughout is excellent.

The supplementary bill is rather more pretentious than usual. Two sound subjects of contrasted content are about equally diverting—Nat Carr in "General Ginsberg," a comic episode of the great war, and "The Rubeville Night Club," a C. B. Maddock production in which a city idea finds its way into a rural community with hilarious results. Plenty of laughs in both.

The bill is completed by an especially interesting issue of the RKO News, entirely in sound, a Christmas greeting reel and an orchestral novelty by Freddy Clark and his R-K-Olians which, unfortunately, was not presented at the performance I attended.

RIALTO

"THE SHANNONS OF BROADWAY." A Universal all-talking adaptation of the stage play by James Gleason, featuring the author and Lucille Webster Gleason. Directed by Emmett J. Flynn. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

In keeping with the season of kindness and generosity, the Rialto offers a picture whose theme is in accord with the best Christmas tradition. Briefly the story concerns a small-time vaudeville duo who purchase a country hotel "to get a sandwich." Through the acquiring of the hotel site and adjoining properties for an airport the Shannons are able to snatch success and happiness from impending disaster.

At the outset it might be supposed that this would be just another of those song-and-dance, small-time vaudeville pictures for it opens with a stage show. But immediately the Shannons are fired, and forthwith the drama continues in the hotel, where the entire necessary action transpires. The play closes with the Shannons again on the stage with their new and glorified act.

James Gleason and his real-life wife, Lucile Webster Gleason, are admirably chosen for their respective leads. A noteworthy feature of the production is the lack of actual household breaking up which has featured some previous photodramas on this general motif. It is all the more enjoyable that the Gleasons should picturize that marital partnership which has been theirs actually for so many years.

The juvenile love interest is carried by John Breeden and Mary Philbin. Harry Tyler and Gladys Crolius, as the Allens, a befriended vaudeville team, add to the theatrical angle of the hotel venture. Tom Santschi has the role of the scheming realtor who is finally outwitted by his own son, played by Mr. Breedin.

Especial mention should be given the brisk and sparkling dialogue replete with many hilarious wisecracks that have the audience all but rolling in the aisles. Mr. Gleason has used his remarkable talents to perfection in the lines for this picture and those who enjoyed his "Is Zat So?" and many others on the stage, will delight that his pen has lost none of its wit.

The recording and reproduction of sound has kept pace with the cleverness of the dialogue and nothing more can be desired here. The direction and photography are likewise praiseworthy.

Supporting the holiday feature are a delightful photocolor novelty, directed by Bradley Barker and featuring Katheryn Reece, entitled "In Dutch;" the "Voice of Hollywood," featuring Robert Frazer, Lloyd Hamilton, Rudy Vallee, Bennie Rubin and Arthur Lake; a Sunny Jim comedy, "Christmas Cheer," in which that precocious youngster endeavors to find the why and wherefore of Santa Claus, and a release of the Universal News.

The Rialto Orchestra offers the "National Fencibles March" for an overture and accompanies the silent portion of the bill.

She Makes Quick Decisions during the Vita-Minutes

The early-morning idea gets attention—and has the best chance of same-day action.

SALES made at the breakfast table don't label themselves as such when the transaction is completed in the store, in person or on the phone. But every merchant knows such sales are numerous in his store.

And why shouldn't they be? The Vita-Minutes hours are the best hours for the merchant to get his offerings before a host of undistracted buyers. They are the hours when buyers' minds are fresh and rested, and a glance at an ad will make an impression deeper than can be made by anything short of a careful reading, later in the day. Those alert minds are quicker, too, with decisions; and the merchant's chance of a same-day response is multiplied. Advertising messages delivered during the Vita-Minutes don't always get favorable action, of course; that's up to the message. But they do get a better chance for favorable action than messages delivered later in the day; and if they carry enough interest they'll get an answer—instead of a postponement. One of the reasons, one of the biggest reasons, for the outstanding strength and influence of Post advertisements is they are read during the Vita-Minutes, and have every chance to make sales at breakfast.

Moreover, advertisements in The Post go into the homes that do most of the buying in this market—and surrounding territory. What salesman could reach so large and important a section of your market? or could find a way to present your message at the very time when your best prospects are rested, refreshed, making their day's plans?

Breakfast-table messages get quick decisions from readers in the Washington market.

HITTING RECORDS SMASHED IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

GIANTS TRADED SQUAWK FOR SQUAWK

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—It is a very unhappy spectacle which is presented just now by those three quondam friends and neighbors and pals in the bond of clean sport, John J. McGraw, Charles M. Stoneham and Francis Xavier McQuade, partners in the ownership and operation of the New York Giants. The boys have fallen out with one another and now, with love to hatred turned, are lawing at each other in the courts and threatening to emit squawk for squawk until all the tender intimate confidences of their joint and several past careers have been spread upon the public record. Judging from the rather threatening demeanor of Mr. Stoneham and His Honor, Judge McQuade, who is a city magistrate of New York, these disclosures will be such as to discomfit all concerned and contribute nothing to the cause of sportsmanship in which they originally joined their efforts. His honor, the judge, a man of very excitable temperament, began the lawing some time ago and now Mr. Stoneham has lawed back at him with a demand for $250,000.

Mr. McGraw Placed In Pleasant Spot.

McGraw does not appear as a separate party in the litigation. The situation presents a fine opportunity to be sore at both of the others and McGraw's disposition is such that the more people he can be sore at and the sorer he can be at them, the merrier things are to him.

It would be not only difficult but presumptuous in a case pending before the honorable courts of the State of New York to sort out the complaints of the three high-spirited boys. About a year and a half ago, Judge Francis Xavier McQuade suddenly discovered one day that he had been voted out of his office as treasurer of the Giants' Baseball Firm, with its salary of $20,000 a year. That evening he was quite angry and issued a paper for the press threatening to tell various interesting things about Mr. Stoneham, but later, when the newspaper chaps called around to bend a number of eager ears to hear the squawk of the honorable judge against his late colleague, Stoneham, he sent out another notice, reading in substance, "squawk postponed; wet grounds."

One Good Squawk Deserves Another.

Presumably, this is the squawk which the honorable jurist of New York and minor statesman in the councils of Tammany Hall purposes to emit now and on the theory that one good squawk deserves another, the squawking promises to be unconfined.

I have gathered that the proprietorship of the New York Giants has been one of the incidental embarrassments of Judge K. M. Landis, the baseball commissioner, in his efforts to square the practice with the idealistic pretensions which he enunciated in the first blush of his authority as commissioner or czar of the baseball industry.

Just before Judge Landis consented to do himself the honor of attesting the virtue of the baseball industry, an athlete employed by the Giants was taken by the police in an act of apparent sin concerning a mislaid automobile. The athlete was an outfielder of some note and, although he was subsequently given a writ of exoneration by the people, per the courts and notwithstanding his ap-

Juniors Open Play for U. S. Net Title

Record Field of 111 to Compete; Negroes Unlikely to Play.

Jacobs and Seligson Top Seeded Groups at New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Sixteen youthful tennis players, including nine college students, are seeded in the draw for the national junior indoor tennis singles championship which gets under way tomorrow at the Seventh Regiment Armory. This chosen group is headed by William Jacobs, of Baltimore City College, and Sidney Seligson, of New York University.

The others are Richard K. Hebard, of White Plains, N. Y.; E. D. Donovan, Fordham prep; Walter Rothschild, New Rochelle High School; Charles T. French, University of Maryland; Donald Frame, Harvard; Charles Abedon, Yale; W. G. Mundy, Yale; Franklin Whitbeck, Loomis School; Jack Laimbeer, St. Paul's School, Garden City, N. Y.; Richard Solomon Brown; Nathaniel T. Winthrop, Boston; Herman K. Goldberg, Johns Hopkins; Ben Cohen, Wilmington, Del., High School, and Edwin H Luch, University of Pennsylvania.

Richard Murphy, of Utica, N. Y., now a Harvard freshman, won the title last year at Baltimore, but because of illness will be unable to defend it.

Biggest Field on Record.

The field, however, is the biggest on record for this annual tournament, with a total of 111 contestants. For this reason the national indoor boys' singles, originally scheduled to open the same day, will not begin until Friday. The doubles in both classes will get under way after the early rounds of singles have been played.

A controversy sprang up over rejection of the entries of two New York Negro players, Reginald Weir, of the City College tennis team, and Gerald Norman, jr., captain of the Flushing High School team, in the junior singles. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People charged that they were barred because of their color, but the tournament committee made no move to reverse its earlier action, and it was assumed Weir and Norman would not compete.

BLAKE WINS EASILY.

Allentown, Pa., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Mickey Blake, Los Angeles, junior welterweight, now living here, dealt out a terrific lacing to Georgie Mallick, of Wilkes-Barre, in the feature 8-round bout here this afternoon to win the unanimous decision of the judges and referee. Mallick weighed 143; Blake, 140.

Promising Business Quintet Faces Overconfidence Fight

Orange Fans Enthusiastic Over Chances of Winning Long Sought Court Title; Eastern's Disaster Must Be Avoided.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, JR.

WILL Business High School's promising basket ball team fall a victim to the same circumstances that undoubtedly robbed the Eastern's football team of the inter-high championship?

With every possible indication pointing to a triumph for the Business team over its four rivals, scholastic fans throughout the city are recalling the preseason dope which just about "gave" the Lincoln Parkers the gridiron championship before the team had even put a cleat on the field. That dope pointed to the fact that the Eastern squad had the best collection of stars in scholastic ranks, but which proved powerless to win more than two games.

At the present writing, the Business five warrants the talk of "championship" at the Ninth Street School, but in the light of the facts in the Eastern case this may be unwise.

Undoubtedly the Eastern eleven had the best group of performers in uniform at the beginning of the season, even as Business now seems to have the most promising group of court stars of any of the five squads. But with those praises ringing in their ears, the Eastern players went on the field too cocky and were unable to "click" in a manner sufficient to withstand the attack of young, inexperienced, but earnest opponents. Their demeanor, indicating superiority, was superficial, and bitter were the lessons the Easterners were forced to learn.

The Business court team on paper appears good enough to win the majority of its games. In Pete Lucas, Nate Newman, Milton Singman and Pete Loftus, Coach Lynn Woodworth can boast of four seasoned performers, all of whom played in a brilliant fashion during the 1929 series. Spencer Chase at center rounds out what should be a formidable combination. It has been a long time since such an array of stars have appeared in the Orange uniform.

And therein lies the hope of Business students. Realizing that their school has been without a championship athletic team since—who can remember?—the players are expected to go on the floor with that idea firmly fixed in their minds and determined to give their all to the attainment of a long sought goal. It will be no cocksure team of athletes out to walk over their rivals, but a fighting, resolute group of courtmen ready to regain a "long-lost" title.

Fields and Thompson May Clash in Chicago

Chicago, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—The proposed welterweight championship match between Jackie Fields, of Los Angeles, and Young Jack Thompson, San Francisco Negro challenger, may be held in Chicago after all.

Promoter Jack Dempsey scheduled the bout for the Chicago Coliseum on January 17, but canceled plans because he understood the Illinois State Athletic Commission would stand firm on its ruling against matches between whites and Negroes. With that development, Tom McArdle, of Madison Square Garden, billed them for New York, January 3, only to have the New York commission refuse its sanction.

Now Chairman Clinnin, of the Illinois commission, has given new hope for the match here by quoting freely from the fourteenth amendment to the constitution, intimating that as far as he is concerned mixed bouts are permissible anywhere in the United States.

Taylor and Mastro Prime for Contest

Chicago, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Bud Taylor and Earl Mastro, featherweight rivals, spent Christmas finishing the strenuous part of their conditioning for their ten-round return engagement in the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

The winner has been promised a match with Kid Chocolate, sensational Cuban battler, and with this in prospect, the action promises to be of a spectacular variety. Mastro, the Chicago youngster, rules a favorite to defeat the Terre Haute terror.

In their previous bout, Mastro and Taylor battled ten swift rounds to what was declared a draw, with the judges and the referee all disagreeing on the verdict.

Tilden Wins Christmas Dinner From Borotra

Paris, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Jean Borotra was compelled to play host to his tennis rival, Big Bill Tilden, this evening for a Christmas dinner at one of the most expensive restaurants in Paris as the result of a friendly wager between Tilden and the Bounding Basque concerning their prowess on the courts.

Tilden, paired with Charles Kingsley, of Great Britain, with whom he will play in the covered courts Christmas Cup tournament beginning tomorrow, defeated Borotra and Luis Torralva, of Chile, 7—5, 17—15, in a practice match. Borotra had anticipated an entirely different result and had backed his opinion to the extent of the best dinner in town.

Like the wager, the match proved to be a personal duel between Tilden and Borotra in which Big Bill had a slight edge.

Rival Elevens to Start Work for Dallas Game

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Initial training sessions were carded for tomorrow for the Southwest and Middle-West all-star football squads, which New Year's Day will meet in the second annual Dixie classic at Ownby Stadium, the home of the Southern Methodist University Mustangs.

Coach Ray Morrison, of the Mustangs, grooming the Southwestern players, expected to have a full squad at the stadium for a preliminary workout. The same was true of Jimmy Phelan, coach of the Big Ten champion Purdue eleven, who has called many great and near-great pigskin warriors at Fair Park Stadium.

Opening drills were expected to be mild affairs in which rival coaches will spend more time placing players at positions rather than attempting any rough work. It will be a different story from Friday until the game, though. Starting Friday, with the exception of Sunday, two practices will be held each day. All workouts will be secret.

G. U. QUINTET IN DRILL AT BROOKLYN

Opens Northern Trip Against K. C. There Tomorrow.

THOUGH they will not play before a home crowd until January 7, Georgetown's basketers will be the first of Capital college players to resume competition following Christmas vacation. The Toya squad is slated to gather this afternoon in Brooklyn and work out under Coach Bill Dudack, preparatory to engaging the Columbus Council, Knights of Columbus, Five tomorrow night on the latter's floor.

This game will mark the opening of Georgetown's annual Christmas season invasion of the North. Three other contests and possibly a fourth will be played before they return to Washington. Crescent A. C. will be met Saturday night in Brooklyn; Manhattan College will be encountered Monday night in New York City, and an unnamed opponent is to be played Tuesday night at New Haven in the Yale tournament. If they survive the first game, the Hoyas will stay on the scene for another game in which the championship of the tourney will be decided.

Coach Dudack selected his regular line-up for these contests before leaving here last Saturday. He picked Capt. Maurice McCarthy and Fredy Mesmer as guards; Don Dutton, center, and Bill Shea and Walter Morris, forwards. The last-named is a Washington native and bids fair to help the Blue and Gray immenesly this winter.

Violets Knocked G. U. From Tourney Title Last Year.

A year ago Georgetown suffered two of its five losses on a Northern trip. Crescent A. C. and New York University took the Hilltoppers' measure. The defeat at the Violets' hands cost the locals the Yale tournament title. This year they hope to avenge that beating, as New York again is entered in the tourney.

While not overly confident of their ability to win all of these games, Coach Dudack said last week that the Hoyas undoubtedly would benefit from playing against strong opponents such as those to be met. One or two losses will not offset the value of the experience to be gained, he opined.

Massey Beats Datto; Decision Not Popular

Philadelphia, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Lew Massey, Philadelphia, won an unpopular decision over Johnny Datto, Cleveland slugger, in the 10-round windup of the Christmas matinee at the Arena today. Each scaled 125½ pounds. The verdict given by the referee after the two judges had disagreed was hooted by the fans.

In the fourth round Datto clipped Massey on the jaw with a terrific right that sent the Philadelphian down for a count of eight. Massey fought a great battle, but the Filipino from Cleveland took everything he had to offer and was always boring in for more.

Matt Adgie, 170½, Philadelphia, was given the decision over Billy Jones, 172½, Philadelphia, in the 10-round semiwindup. Baby Joe Gans, 140, Los Angeles, defeated Harry "Kid" Brown, 137½, Philadelphia, in another fast 10-round bout.

BASKETBALL TWIN BILL.

A double-header basket ball attraction is listed at the Y. M. C. A. tonight, starting at 7:30. In the first game, the "Y" Reserves will take on the Saranac A. C., with the Regulars meeting the National Press Building Cardinals in the feature.

Army Eleven In Holiday Practice

Cadets Test Defensive Strength for Clash With Stanford.

Murrell's Punting Is Reaching Top Form; Foes Also Drill.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—The Yuletide spirit hovered over West Point headquarters here this forenoon, but gave way in the afternoon to grim business as Coach "Biff" Jones sent the Cadet footballers through their final scrimmage before Saturday's game against Stanford University.

The West Pointers awoke to find a huge Christmas tree in Branner Hall. Grouped about were gifts from their friends and families. Coach Jones was presented with a wrist watch by the squad. Maj. Frank Wandle, the team's trainer, played Santa Claus.

After a sight-seeing tour the Cadets donned their moleskins for the final test of their defensive strength against Stanford plays. McWilliams, yearling back-field ace, whirled loose for long gains on some of Pop Warner's lateral-pass creations, but otherwise the varsity stopped the Plebes dead.

Johnny Murrell, Chris Cagle and Dick Hutchinson spent a long session kicking the ball around. Murrell, who will handle the punting assignment against Stanford Saturday, has reached his Notre Dame form. Cagle and Hutchinson practiced drop-kicking and place kicking for the extra point after touchdown.

Grand Reunion Staged.

A grand reunion was staged today between Jack Cannon, Notre Dame guard here with the All-Eastern Eleven, and Harry Hillsinger, the Army guard. The two men, according to their own report, tangled in every play of the Army-Notre Dame game last month, and both came out of it badly used up, but they fell on each other's necks as they met today.

Comparative quiet reigned in the Stanford camp today. The Cardinals confined their activities to a light workout this morning.

Dowler, of East's Team, Hurt, May Not Perform

San Francisco, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Snappy workouts this morning were included in the Christmas Day festivities of the football stars who will meet here New Year's Day in the annual East-West Shriners Hospital charity game. The two squads concentrated on perfecting the half-dozen formations given them by the respective coaches, Andy Kerr, of the East, and Percy Locey, of the West.

This afternoon the players were guests at Christmas dinners. The Easterners assembled at a private home in Menlo, near Stanford University, where they are holding their practice session. The Western boys, making their headquarters in San Francisco, had "turkey helpings" at the Lake Side Country Club.

Tom Churchill, University of Oklahoma end, who is expected to be one of the cogs in the West's passing attack, turned up today with an ankle injury. It was not considered serious, however, and he is expected to be in uniform again within a day.

An injury to Tom Dowler, half back from Colgate, continued to worry the East Team's coaching staff today. Dowler wrenched a knee in a scrimmage against Stanford Monday and may not be in shape by time for the game.

The practice sessions to date indicate the Eastern Team will depend largely on ground plays, while the Westerners will go after yardage via the air. The Eastern boys have been installed favorites.

S. California Gridmen Take Christmas Rest

Los Angeles, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Christmas brought a lazy day to a hard-working squad of University of Southern California football players and turkey and yuletide cheer replaced classrooms and a gridiron in the athletes' grind for the New Year's Day game in Pasadena with Pittsburgh.

Tomorrow the Trojans will trek back to Bovard Field to smooth the rough spots in the attack with which they hope to wrest victory from the powerful Panthers of Pitt.

Pitt's invasion of the West will find a welcome proclaiming them favorites over the storm-tossed Trojans, whose erratic football record of the past season was in strong contrast to the even tenor of victory credited to the Easterners.

This weighing of odds against the Southern Californians was a hopeful sign, however, for their mentor, Coach Howard Jones.

Jones feels that his team will enter the rose bowl mentally fit as well as physically capable. He believes that the heralded strength of Pitt has offset any overconfidence which the Trojans' emphatic victory two weeks ago over Carnegie Tech might have given his squad.

33 Pittsburgh Players Entrain for West Coast

Pittsburgh, Dec. 5 A.P.).—Thirty three football players of the University of Pittsburgh, their mentors and other members of the official party entrained tonight on special coaches of the Penn Railroad for their trip, starting at midnight, to the Pacific coast. The Panthers meet the University of Southern California in the tournament of Roses classic at Pasedena, Calif., on New Year's day.

A light tapering off drill was held indoors this afternoon. Three workouts are planned en route. The first is scheduled for tomorrow on Washington University Field at St. Louis. Friday the Panthers are due in Dallas, Texas, where they will be entertained and will work out on the Southern Methodist University gridiron. The third is scheduled for Saturday at a high school field in El Paso, Texas.

A lay-over of one day at Tucson, Ariz., has been planned. The squad expects to arrive at Pasadena, Calif., the morning of December 30.

LEADS BATTERS

FRANK O'DOUL, of the Phillies, who led the National League batters for the 1929 season.

O'Doul Leads With .398 Average

Klein Breaks Home Run Record With Total of 43.

Feats of Phils as Club Feature Play of Last Season.

(The official National League averages are printed on Page 13 of this morning's Post.)

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

OUTFIELDER FRANK J. (LEFTY) O'DOUL, a converted pitcher, whose trade to the Phillies by Manager John J. McGraw possibly cost the New York Giants a pennant, led National League batters during the 1929 season with an average of .398, according to official averages released today. O'Doul set a new league record in compiling this average, his 254 hit total being the largest ever registered in his circuit. He also tied with Lloyd Waner, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, for making the most singles, 181, while he was one of five players in the entire league not to miss a game during the season. The others were Arthur Whitney and Frank Hurst, teammates; George Sisler, former Washington first sacker, now with the Boston Braves, and Rogers Hornsby, of the Cubs.

Charles Klien, of the Phillies, playing his first year as a regular, also came through with a record, his 43 home runs being the biggest cluster of circuit clouts ever recorded in a season in the senior league. The previous mark in this respect was 42, made in 1922 by Rogers Hornsby, who also held the biggest hit total which was exceeded by O'Doul.

Hornsby Loses Two Records, But Creates One.

While losing these records, the Cub second baseman broke one himself, his 156 total of runs scored beating Hazen Cuyler's 1925 mark by 12. Hornsby also led the field in total bases, with 410.

Johnny Frederick, sensational Brooklyn rookie, showed the way in doubles, with 52, while Lloyd Waner had the most triples, 20, and also was charged with the most times at bat, facing pitchers 662 official times. Cuyler, Cub fly-chaser, stole 43 bases to lead the pack, while Fred Maguire, of the Braves, was credited with the most sacrifices, 26.

Although the Chicago Cubs won the pennant, the feature of the National League season was the performance of Burt Shotten's Phillies. For years the door mat of the circuit, they suddenly came to life and beat out several teams. In addition to furnishing the home-run king in Klein, they led the league in team hitting, averaging .309, made the most hits, the most total bases, and the most homers. Two of these items were new league marks. The homer total of 153 smashed figures of 140 hung up by the Chicago Cubs back in 1884, while the total base figures of 2,559 were 107 larger than the previous mark made by the Boston Braves in 1894.

Club Totals Set Five Major League Marks.

Pittsburgh went to bat the most times, 5,490; made the most three-base hits, 116, and also the most singles, 1,202. Chicago scored the most runs, 982, and tied with the Cardinals for most two-base hits, 310. Boston made the most sacrifices, 197; Cincinnati players pilfered the most sacks, 134, while the New York Giants held their opponents to the smallest run total, 709.

In their combined total, National League clubs created five major league records and one league one, as follows: In batting, with .294; hits, 12,668; total bases, 18,321; runs scored, 6,609, and home runs, 754. The league mark broken was for doubles, the one of 2,120, made in 1925, being enlarged to 2,253.

SKINKER EAGLES OPEN.

DIXIE GAME BACKED BY COLLEGES

Contest Jan. 1 Bears Official Stamp of Conference.

Special to The Washington Post.

ATLANTA, Dec. 25.—While general interest in the Southern Conference has died down, a great deal of interest is being aroused in the public mind toward the all-star teams from the northern and southern sections of the Southern Conference that will play in Atlanta on New Year's Day.

This game promises to be a real attraction in the way of football and the official aspect of it has appealed to the public tremendously. Several times in the past year all-star teams have attempted to put on a football show of one sort or another, but these have always had more or less a touch of private promotion.

The fact that the Southern Conference has officially recognized the game and given full permission to it has given a certain standing that other postseason games of other natures have not had. These features make the game a real part of the athletic program of the conference.

Moreover, the coaches that are handling the teams were appointed directly by the Southern Coaches Association and are, therefore, the official coaches of the two teams. These coaches accepted these positions as a matter of real responsibility, not as a barnstorming proposition.

Each Coach Names Two Players.

The players invited to this game have accepted with fine spirit, and as many as could get away from other duties felt that this was an opportunity to help out a project that was not only worthy in conception, but official in sanction.

The method of selection of the men who are to represent the two sections of the conference was unique, but probably the most effective way of selecting players. Each coach of a conference was asked to name the two best players in each position from teams in his section, but he was not allowed to mention any players on his own team. This method of selection assured complete satisfaction as well as justice to every good player, and the men who were selected certainly represent the best football material in the Southern Conference. An opportunity to see men of this kind in action in one game does not come very often, and is going to be a great chance for football fans.

The idea of selecting two squads of 25 men each presents an opportunity for fans to see all the real star players of the conference in action. This list of players constitutes an honor roll of players of more than average ability.

The game promises to be a real football game as well as a great charity project. Indications assure a great crowd, in all probability one of the best that has seen a game of this sort anywhere in the South. The character of the project toward which the proceeds will go, the high type of men who are directly behind the game and responsible for its conception all tend to make the game a real feature of the season.

PAUL BUNYAN, 11-1, WINS JEFFERSON PARK THRILLER

Four Horses Are Heads Apart

Patricia Marian Second, Uncommon Gold Third.

Chancellor Has Rough Journey; Crowd Sets Season's Mark.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, Dec. 25 (A.P.).—Urged on by the rousing cheers of 10,000 race fans, L. M. Severson's Paul Bunyan, bay colt by Paul Weidel, repeated his Thanksgiving Handicap victory when he led home the big field of the Christmas Handicap here today. It was a thrilling finish and the big crowd gave the victor a great hand. Patricia Marian was second and Uncommon Gold third. For his trip over the mile and a sixteenth route the winner earned $3,850, and a handsome floral offering.

The crowd today was the best and most representative New Orleans could furnish. The clubhouse was packed and the grandstand had no vacant seats. The weather was ideal for racing, but summerlike and bright.

Sixteen handicap horses paraded for the feature, with Chancellor, which won a good race a few days ago, the favorite, but he was unfortunate during the running. He was knocked back and out of contention early.

The start was good and Calf Roper soon took the lead, with Chancellor second and War Instigator third. As they rounded the first turn there was a lot of crowding, in which the favorite suffered most.

Calf Roper Leads Near Start.

In the run down the back stretch Calf Roper led Rocket Glare, with War Instigator third. There was no important change in the positions in the next half-mile, but in the stretch Paul Bunyan, running on the outside, began to close with a brilliant rush. They all came into the final furlong driving hard. Whips were flying and all the boys were doing their utmost. Paul Bunyan closed steadily and in a herculean effort L. Martin lifted his mount over the line, winner by a head. Patricia Marian gained the place by a head over the fast-closing Uncommon Gold, with War Instigator another head off.

Paul Bunyan, by his victory today, is the leading money winner of this meeting, his winnings being over $7,000.

General Manager Robert Eddy was highly elated at the turnout. The machines handled about $150,000 on the day.

OUT of the old vat. Whether or not you've recovered from the Christmas orgy, your Uncle Bertram has and what you didn't get in presents from your poor relations you're going to get now—all in one fell swoop, wateverinell that is. The glad tidings is none other than DOROTHY LEE, which goes right under the gun down at Jeff Park this aft. Now you don't have to tell me this one is a bleeder—I know that—but I know too, that the spot—a five and a half furlong spring for 2-year-olds of the cheaper variety—seems to have been made to order, and that the mucous membrane has been all patched up and this baby is ready to strut her stuff—at a price.

In the second the good BRILLIANTE—and Lord knows I've handed you this one enough times to you should recognize the moniker—looks like a spread. Has been dropped down at least two notches and will be sent for all the huckleberries.

The trackman slips me BOTCH, which has been knocking the ticktock boys off the fences in all his trials. He is a fair sort of hide and this looks like the right place for a killing.

The feature—if you care to call it that—is the fourth, a juvenile attraction. I can't see how THEO ROCHESTER can miss here.

STAGE STRUCK seems well aspected in the fifth and the same goes for SANDY LADY in the next to last canto.

Down at Havana today, the old wopsey tiger is ROBERTA L. Those cagey players will chisel the price down, but anything will be a good bit here. JIM MILLER, out of the sticks, looks like the contender.

BOBBIN' ALONG is another that seems to have a 6 point call at least, on his field. Don't lose sight of the fact that Uncle Bertram has been just hotter than a fox down at Oriental Park. And dat's dat.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE first exchange of international radio programs yesterday was a great success. Mechanically, there is still room for improvement, but the experiment demonstrated clearly the remarkable progress which has been made and the vast possibilities the future holds. Programs have heretofore been exchanged with foreign countries but not on the same day.

We first sent a program to England via Station WGY, Schenectady, with short waves. The announcer in London later reported the program was heard as clearly there "as if they had been sitting in the same room." This was followed by a program to Holland.

At the conclusion of these broadcasts Holland was heard from, then Germany, and finally England. The incoming programs were picked up by the Radio Corporation station at Riverhead, Long Island, then by means of a National Broadcasting Co. network distributed to stations throughout the United States including WRC in Washington. This morning we will send to Germany a program which may be heard through WRC.

THE broadcast from Holland was one of the best that has yet been heard across the Atlantic. Germany was not so good, but England was better than has been heard from that country There was little or no static. The broadcasts were as different in character as the countries from which they originated.

Christmas was the keynote in all the foreign programs. This was as clearly conveyed as if one had been in those countries. The ponderous bells could be heard in Eindhoven, Holland, mingled with an orchestra playing Christmas carols such as "Come All Ye Faithful." Hendrik Willem van Loon, the historian, speaking from Amsterdam, wished a "Merry Christmas" to President and Mrs. Hoover. Mr. Van Loon recalled that the first journey of the Dutch to America took four months and added that it gave him a thrill to realize that his voice was being carried to the United States "by means of this little contraption in front of me on top of an old umbrella stand" in one-sixtieth of a second."

"BERLIN CALLING!" was the next thing Capital listeners heard, "This is the short wave wireless station at Koenigswusterhausen, Germany." Whereupon followed a concert direct from Unter den Linden. This concluded with "Silent Night."

Following this London tuned in with what was described as the "Service Christmas Pudding" to which the British navy contributed 10 minutes, the Royal Air Force 10 minutes and the British army a like period. To American listeners it sounded like Old Bill in the "Better 'Ole." It portrayed in word and song how those in the service were spending their Christmas Day.

With whirling propellers plainly heard and to an accompaniment of radio code signals, two flight leftenants indulged in patter interesting to American ears as apparently they soared above the clouds and later swooped down in an effort to spot some enemy cavalry.

In this exchange such expressions were heard as "steaming plum pudding with brandy sauce," and the retort of one leftenant to another, who a mile high was romancing about what he would like his Christmas dinner to be, "Your wine rosy in the bowl, you are talking about, may turn out to be vin ordinaire in a flower pot."

There was a novelty in listening to the French and Dutch announcements in the first two broadcasts, and hardly less in the sometimes almost undistinguishable conversation of those taking the part of British service men in the Christmas pudding sketch.

CONSIDERING what we have to offer musically in the United States the programs we sent abroad were very inferior. The broadcast to Holland was particularly poor. One would naturally think we would put our best foot forward on such an occasion. We wonder, for instance, how our cultured Dutch friends enjoyed "Am I Blue?" as it was moaned to them yesterday, and what they may think of us if they believe this is the best we can offer musically. For the most part our offerings were a lot of jazzy tunes and not particularly well played at that.

It would have been just as easy to have put on something typically American like the United States Marine Band. Likewise our programs showed an utter lack of anything typifying the Christmas spirit. Christmas, almost reverently in some instances, permeated the foreign programs, but ours sounded more as though they came from a Broadway night club.

At least we might have complimented our foreign friends by playing some of their favorite airs as Holland did during her program with "Home, Sweet Home" and Germany "Down on the Swanee River."

Now that radio has become a medium of the international exchange of good will the program makers ought to be sent to Washington for a course in diplomacy.

NOT the least interesting in the broadcasts, especially to those who with Christmas gift sets were listening in for the first time, was the fact though it was 12 o'clock noon in Washington when the broadcast came from Holland, where it was 5:20 p. m. The German broadcast at 6:45 p. m. was heard here at 12:45 p. m., and darkness had settled on London at 7 p. m. as we heard it at 2 p. m. on Christmas afternoon.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICORN."

IF December 26th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 6 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:20 p. m., and from 10:45 p. m. to midnight. The danger period is from 8 p. m. to 9:50 p. m.

You will be rather left on your own on this date as far as the astrological influences are concerned. Efforts will be made, but will be met with little encouragement. Opportunities will be conspicuous by their absence. The mill gains by going and not by standing still, and your "day book" need not show more debits than credits to your account.

Children born on this December 26th will possess normal, ordinary intelligence, but will have a superabundance of common sense. They will be emotionally stable and they will jog along in the even tenor of their ways, in the long run surpassing their more brilliant competitors. They will be placid, but not too indifferent.

You, as a December 26th person, reveal, at most times a very gentle, quiet and almost shy nature, and you can be most amenable and genial. When a principle is at stake, however, or your sensibilities are trod upon, you are a most fiery, stubborn, and courageous being. You prefer being a pacifist, but necessity can soon make you a brave warrior. You are too loyal at heart to ever forsake, under any consideration, either a person or cause. Your tongue can be most pleasing, or it can bruise and distress.

You never allow business or work to become your master, the lighter side of your nature is allowed its place in your life. When you work, you work hard and deliberately, and when you play the same rule applies. You have too many hobbies, too many interests, to ever fall into a rut. They help you to keep a sane mind and a sane body. You are very sociable, and you are not satisfied to just mingle with your associates, you must have close human bonds. You never like being cut off from the herd. You seek and need encouragement, affection and stimulus from others. You have a very unselfish, devoted and sincere love which you have to give to others.

Art Interprets the Mode

Striking ensemble for winter sports, entirely black and white . . . the suit, the knitted scarf, gloves and socks. (Courtesy of Suzanne Talbot, Paris.)

Paris, December 25.

"TAKE back your diamonds," haughtifies the Lovely Lady . . . "I have at the moment absolutely no desire!"

What, no desires? None . . . save perhaps the ever-findless fan.

What, then, is the "ever-findless fan?" Dollars (s'posedly), can find anything tangible.

Not always. Because sometimes it is an art to not find something. No elegant, no connoisseur of life permits himself everything he wants. And the unfindable can well be purposely so, particularly if it is something very, very near to one's heart.

• • • •

A small white fan, delicate as the tracery of hoar frost on a dark plantain leaf. (Yes, my fan is just as improbable as hoar frost in the tropics!) It is mounted on fragile white sticks, which are as the white of the little crescent moon made transparent by the approaching dawn.

A million tiny pearl tears, left by the silver laughter of dancing fairies, are strewn on it, frosting the edge of each tangled and patterned design.

The Orient has been searched for this dream fan, lush Havana combed, gay and sad Seville been begged to give up its treasure—but it has none.

Perhaps in the nethermost depths of Tajmahal it lies beside her who caused that divinely beautiful structure to be raised in her memory. Perhaps winter will capture a lingering blade of moonlight and render it unperishable in his icy grasp—p[illegible]os, ah, perhaps even your dollars could not buy this, Monsieur! For my everfindless fan is not mortal, and were it to be found, my heart would surely break.

A blouse from half an hour no, I mean in a half an hour—no, silly, on a lady.

Yes, a new Dah-ray blouse, which Dare herself wears as a pajama top, which La Chic Secretaire wears with a velvet skirt for tea and bridge (whenever she gets a chance to go to either) and which Mamzelle wears with her tailored suit.

Promise you you can make it yourself! Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which gives you not only the design but the directions for making it.

The Couturiers.

Suzanne Talbot can do the most unusual things when she starts out to do it—or them! How any one could achieve such smart simplicity—or shall we say simple smartness . . . she knows, and we show you today. We can, however, only suggest the striking effect of this skiing ensemble for winter sports, with its black woolen fabric, black and white knitted scarf, and alors! gloves and socks to match.

• • • •

Jenny. Well, that we all know how to pronounce, because it is simply "Jenny" as it is in English. Lelong also is pronounced in English just as it is spelled, only the accent is on the last syllable, on the "long."

And must we remind you again of the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Post each Sunday. We just know you'll enjoy it.

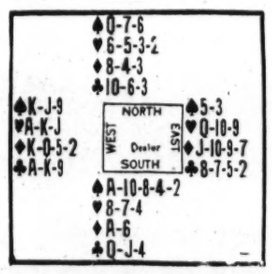
WORK'S BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The hand was played at Auction Bridge. South bid one Spade, West one No Trump which obtained the contract. If it had been played at Contract Bridge, West doubtless would have bid three No Trumps.

In the play, North led the Queen of Spades—the best card of his partner's suit; South finessed and West won with the King. West then established his Diamonds. South won and established his Spades, but West (the Declarer) won two Spade tricks, three Hearts, three Diamonds and two Clubs, making four No Trumps.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The error in the hand was made by North when he led the Queen of Spades instead of the Six. When holding Queen and two small of partner's suit which has been overcalled by a No Trump on the leader's right, the lowest card should be led. This probably will enable the Queen to take a trick as it will be guarded and sitting over the No Trump hand. The result of making the proper lead usually is to take one more trick in partner's suit.

If North opens with the Spade Six, South will win with the Ace and continue with Spades, leading the Eight. West, unable to read that North holds the Queen, doubtless will play the Jack. North, winning with the Queen, would lead a third Spade which West would win and lead a Diamond to establish that suit. But South, taking with the Ace of Diamonds, would cash his two long Spades, so North and South would take four Spades and one Diamond, thus saving game.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"SELFISH AND INCONSIDERATE."

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I never thought I'd be writing to you for advice, not because I would not need it but because life seemed, oh, so rosy. But here I am. I hope you can find time to answer my questions.

Yes, it is about a boy who is selfish and inconsiderate. You see, we have been going together almost a year. Here is the dilemma I am in. Neither my friends or my family approve of the lad. They admit that he is all right, although he doesn't seem very settled, but for family reasons they object. Well, leaving the family out and getting down to him, for it is about him I am writing, what shall I do? I have loved the boy almost from the start. He somehow felt that he was inferior to me, but why I can not see.

Soon after we were engaged, which has been nearly as long as I have known him, he would speak of "leaving me," thinking it would be far better for me if he went off. Well, he never went. I was glad he didn't, for I love him.

But he has developed moody spells in the last few months. The cause I have never been able to find out, but he always says nothing is wrong, or at least I am not the cause of it. Here is my problem. He doesn't have a job with a sufficient income to support himself hardly, much less an incumbrance in the form of a wife. He talks of getting married incessantly. We couldn't get married for a few years yet at the least.

It was one of his spells that prompted me to write. He got very insulting over a little razzing that I gave him. Not in an unfriendly way, but just in jest, and in the same manner, tone, way, &c., that he has given me so much. I take it thinking he only means it in fun. Well, why should he be so disagreeable when I return it? It seems to me that life is made up of far greater things than getting sulky over such insignificant ones. Is he worth the struggle? Should I stick by him?

He has been so selfish and inconsiderate that he has just about turned me against the world and the male race in general. Sometimes I think that he is not worth it all. I've always played square and it hurts not to have him to play fair with me. Do you think he could stand the strain when the real problems of life faces him?

No man is worth any sort of struggle, my child! But that fact never deters any of us when we love one. No, sir, we go right on listening to his rantings, playing audience to his tantrums, sympathizing with his dark moods, coaxing him out of his jealousies.

It all depends upon personal taste. Some women get a real thrill out of darning a beloved man's socks, some are considerably let down by such necessary service. In the same way one woman loves to soothe away her lord's wrath, another walks out on him.

You will have to decide whether you would rather mother this complaining youth or be cared for by a grown man. Personally a cry-baby man is our pet abomination and one exhibition of nasty disposition, and we are through forever. But that is simply because we happen to regard men as an institution for the protection, admiration and delight of woman! Failing that he is out. Selfish men, snarling men; crabby men! mean men, all outside! We like the kind who say, "Well, well, why the wrinkled forehead?" and things like that.

Of course, if you love the boy, that's the answer. But if you just picked him because you felt it was time to pick some one, we say try again! And better luck this time!

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help all who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Uncle Ray's Corner

The Gyroscope.

PERHAPS you or one of your friends received a gyro top or "gyroscope" for Christmas. It is surely the most interesting top in the world.

Until you see it, you can hardly believe a top could spin at such an angle.

The gyro top will spin in the fashion of a common top; and it will also spin at many angles which would cause the usual top to tip over.

So far as our records show, the first gyroscope was made by a Frenchman named Foucault. In 1852 he built a top which would keep turning even when there was a great angle of tilt to the framework.

For 40 years the gyroscope was treated only as a top or as a wheel for scientists to use to test their ideas on certain subjects.

Then inventors set to work to use the gyro wheel for other purposes.

Ships had long been troubled by the rocking caused by waves. To halt that trouble, gyro wheels were placed on board. The result was to keep ships steady.

On an ocean vessel weighing 18,000 tons, a gyro wheel was placed. The wheel and the casing which holds it weigh 112 tons. By means of the gyro wheel the great ship is held on an even keel.

When ships are held steady by gyro wheels, not so many of the passengers grow seasick.

Another invention is the gyro compass. This is used on board ships which contain so much metal that the other kind of compass does not work well. The gyro compass is "set" so that the axis of the wheel points north and south. Even though the framework around the wheel is moved the axis remains north and south.

Several weeks ago, long trips were made by airplanes which carried gyro wheels. These airplanes flew hundreds of miles over the eastern part of the United States. Except for starting or landing, the pilots did not have to guide the airplanes at all. Maybe the time will come when airplanes can land with little help from pilots.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Bullard Co.

J. J. L.—I have 100 shares of Bullard Co. common stock, which I purchased at $50 per share. Would you advise me to take my loss and switch into some other issue, or would you advise me to hold?

Answer.—Bullard Co. earnings for six months ended June 30, 1929, were equal to $2.17 per common share. Dividends are at the rate of $1.60 a year, 40 cents quarterly, and an extra dividend of 40 cents was paid August 15, 1929. Dividend requirements are amply covered by present earnings and the company is in strong financial position. Bullard is favored with progressive management, which is constantly producing new labor saving devices. While this column can not venture to predict the future price at which any security will sell, the earnings reports and dividend yield on Bullard are attractive and for long term holding the issue should be well regarded.

Cities Service Common.

J. F. H.—I have some shares of Cities Service common which cost about 57½ per share. In looking over the monthly high and low for the past eighteen years, running from 20 to 490, I have become somewhat confused. How does it look to you?

Answer.—In the time that you speak of there have been several changes in the capital structure of the company. The most recent one was a four-for-one split-up in the early part of this year. This accounts for the wide difference in prices for the shares, present prices representing the new stock, while the high figures you mention represent the old.

Continental Can, National Dairy.

E. T. L.—Kindly let me know of the prospects of Continental Can common and National Dairy Products.

Answer — Recent improvement in outlook for current packs, which will probably result in record earnings for the full 1929 year, lends to Continental Can common considerable speculative attraction, especially for the long pull. The same is also true of National Dairy Products because of increased earnings and present dividend status. For full year 1929 earnings are conservatively estimated at from $4.85 to $5.50 per common share. Company paying $1.50 annually in cash and 4 per cent in stock.

Anaconda Copper.

W. Z. W.—Has the Anaconda Copper Co. been a consistent dividend payer? What would be your advice as to the purchase of the stock at the present price of around $80?

Answer—With the exception of the calender years 1921-22, company has paid dividends for many years past. It is now paying 7 per cent per annum. As a speculative investment the stock has considerable attraction, particularly for the long term.

Insurance Shares.

W. W. C.—Please advise me if, in your opinion, Insurance Shares at 15 is a good buy for a long pull.

Answer—Stock does not appear at all attractive, either from a speculative or investment viewpoint.

Dome Mines.

J. G. M.—Will you oblige with your opinion concerning Dome Mines, Ltd.? Its dividend has been reduced from time to time, but does the present rate seem secure? How are the mineral reserves or deposits holding out—have they been greatly depleted? What are the company's financial conditions and future prospects?

Answer—The stock appears to have considerable attraction, both from a speculative and investment viewpoint. Recently the president of the company stated that it had cash equal to about $6 a share on its outstanding stock in the treasury. This would seem to indicate that the present dividend rate is secure. Although reports frequently have indicated that ore supply was about exhausted, new discoveries thus far have kept visible supplies sufficient for two to three years of operation. Company has no funded debt, and financial condition is quite strong. There are certain developments pending of an important character, which lend additional attractiveness to the shares.

New Bedford Continues Her Industrial Advance—

New Bedford built and New Bedford manned whaling ships were an important factor in the early development of American world trade.

Today, New Bedford continues her commercial and industrial advance. Primarily an industrial center of diversified manufacturing, New Bedford employs 35,000 wage earners.

New Bedford has a larger percentage of owned homes than any city of 100,000 population or over in New England. Savings bank deposits in 1928 were $447 per capita compared with $237 for the country as a whole.

Opportunity for New Industries

New Bedford, with ample skilled labor and electric power and gas at attractive rates, offer numerous advantages to industry. A deep harbor and excellent highway and railroad transportation facilities bring it close to the rich consuming markets. For a survey based on your specific needs, write to our Industrial Department or the Industrial Development Division, Board of Commerce, New Bedford, Mass.

ARLINGTON COUNTY PASSES QUIET YULE

No Law Infractions Reported Over Day; Churches Hold Services.

LAWNS ARE DECORATED

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

The Christmas spirit prevailed in Arlington County yesterday. Not a single case of disorderly conduct or any other infraction of the law was reported to the authorities. In fact, not a single telephone call was sent to the sheriff's office on matters of official business.

The day was ushered in by the special midnight services in the various churches in the county. In the early evening carol singing was held at the various community centers. Among the community Christmas trees were those at Clarendon, Aurora Heights, Cherrydale, Lyon Village, Lyon Park, Ballston, Falls Church, Arlington and Fort Myer Heights. In every part of the county living trees on the lawns of residences were beautifully decorated with colored lights.

The newly elected officers of Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., will be installed at a special meeting to be held in the Masonic Temple at Clarendon Saturday night by Past Master C. Benjamin Laycock, of Columbia Lodge.

Those who will be installed are: F. Freeland Chew, master; Timothy A. Sullivan, senior warden; H. Bruce Green, junior warden; John M. Stewart, past district deputy grand master, treasurer; Jesse W. Rhorback, secretary; Maynard M. Carlisle, senior deacon; Fred O. Appleton, junior deacon; J. C. Holmes, senior steward; Eustis Crux, junior steward; George A. Thurber, past master, chaplain; C. Benjamin Laycock, past master, marshal; H. N. Clarke, tiler, and H. W. Calhoun, chief instructor.

The Potomac Town Council in a special session Tuesday night passed a resolution recommending to the city council of Alexandria that the Town Hall Building be preserved in its present condition for the use of residents of the town and adjacent communities after Alexandria obtains that section of Arlington County as the result of a decree of court in the recent annexation proceedings effective January 1, 1930. The resolution as adopted further recommends to the officials of Alexandria that the hall be called the Community Building.

The Christmas entertainment at Grace Episcopal Church at Cherrydale and St. George Episcopal Church at Ballston will be held at the churches tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The Arlington County Monarch Club held its weekly luncheon meeting today at 12 o'clock in the Ashton Heights' Woman's Club house in Clarendon avenue. The newly elected president, A. B. Honts, will preside.

Plans by the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce are being completed for the holding of the annual meeting and election of officers which has been announced for the night of January 10. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Washington Lee High School.

With the resignation of P. P. Woodbridge, executive secretary, effective January 15, it is learned that applications for part-time secretary are being received at the offices of the organization in the Rees Building at Clarendon.

Owing to the holidays, Mrs. Florence E. Cannon, president of the Arlington Citizens' Association, announced last night that the December meeting of the association will be omitted.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA, overwhelmed, overcome with emotion, surveyed the numerous presents heaped near the tree—and from what I surmise she is going to do her Christmas swapping early.

"Oh, look what Aunt Phoebe sent me!" she exclaimed, shaking some pink chiffon before my eyes. "Isn't it adorable?"

Before I had a chance to answer she recalled that her mother sent a gift exactly like it.

"Oh, well," said Luella, "I'll swap it for something else." "And these bedroom slippers, too; they're too large."

"Too large?"

"I mean too small, but I'll take 'em back and get stockings instead."

* * * *

SEATED on the sofa, I surveyed the package Luella gave me. Opened, it revealed a Russian blouse lounging suit—built on the order of a pair of fancy pajamas—brown, ensemble, green stripes running the length of the trouser legs."

"I know you'll love them when you get used to——"

"In Russia, perhaps they're all right; but in America, Luella!"

"Don't you like 'em?"

"It isn't the gift," I said, soothing her sensibilities. "It's the idea behind it. Certainly I like 'em. Love 'em because you gave 'em to me, but——"

"You're not going to wear 'em?"

"Now get me right, Luella. I thought at first this was a pair of pajamas, and, of course I'd wear 'em. Now you tell me it's a Russian blouse lounging suit, and I must wear it at afternoon teas. My dear lady——"

* * * *

"OH, it's quite the thing," she said, "in the diplomatic set——"

"You mean the dipsomatic set——"

"No, the diplomatic——"

"The Russian diplomats, perhaps, but we have no Russian diplomats."

"Anyway," she argued, "this is the latest thing in lounging——"

"There isn't much lounging goes on at teas, Luella. Those I've attended were 'stand-up' affairs. You usually stand, with a glass in one hand, and——"

"You're thinking of cocktail parties——"

"No, I'm referring to teas—and I've yet to see a Russian blouse lounging robe at one of 'em."

"Of course, you haven't. They're the latest thing. They haven't come to America yet—except this one I got for you. But over in Moscow——"

* * * *

"IF I wore it, Luella, they'd think I was a Red."

"A Red?"

"Yes, a Red—whereas I'm a red, white and blue!"

"If it's patriotism that stands in the way," she snapped, bundling up the suit, "I'll take it back and exchange it for——"

"For what?" I asked, hopefully.

"For a pair of overalls," she said, adding another item to her Christmas swapping.

ALEXANDRIA MOOSE WILL STAGE DANCE

Proceeds of Entertainment Will Go Go to Upkeep of Mooseheart.

BOY SCOUTS ELECT

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Virginia Lodge, No. 1076, Loyal Order of Moose, at the request of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, the head of Mooseheart, will give an entertainment in the form of a dance January 10. The affair will be given in the auditorium of the Elks Home and an elaborate entertainment program, to be followed by a dance, now is being arranged.

Every Moose lodge throughout the United States has been requested to give an entertainment of some nature for the public in January, the proceeds of which will go to the upkeep of Mooseheart, the home for the widows and fatherless children of members of the organization, situated just outside of Chicago, and at which there are now more than 1,500 children being cared for by the organization.

Samuel W. Wade is chairman of the committee on entertainment, and he has appointed a number of members of the lodge to assist him in making the arrangements. This is expected to be one of the largest of the holiday affairs to be given.

Troop No. 134, Boy Scouts, has announced the election of the following officers for the year: Rand Highman, assistant scoutmaster; Randall Book, junior assistant scoutmaster; Charles Fiercher, senior patrol leader; John Quarles and David Apter, troop scribes; J. Wallace, E. O'Brien, L. Burk, C. Hayden, patrol leaders. William L. Leitch, in charge of scout work in Alexandria, has awarded merit badges to the following members of Troop No. 134: Smith, Peyton, Hayden, Evans, Quarles and Robinson.

Private George F. Williams, of Fort Hunt, while driving an army truck, was arrested after colliding with an automobile driven by Roy Campbell, of Washington, and held at the police station, in default of a $1,500 bond, charged with driving while drunk, possession of intoxicating liquor and colliding, for appearance in Police Court this morning.

Police Justice William S. Snow and City Sergt. Richard F. Cox released nine prisoners from the city jail, just previous to Christmas, as all had only short periods to go before their terms ended.

It was stated at police headquarters last night that the number of Christmas arrests was unusually small, and the ones apprehended were principally drunks.

Kindly Police of Precinct Five Cheer Children of Capitol Hill

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

Santa Stops Off on His Annual Drive at Sign From Capt. Bill.

By AUSTIN T. ROGERS.

The Fifth Precinct was joyous as kids of Capitol Hill
Flocked in to see the Christmas tree set up by Captain Bill.
The custom was begun by Sanford
seven years ago,
And yesterday the cops regaled two thousand tots or so.

For weeks the lads in blue had been preparing for the fete.
For Christmas Day at Number Five is the year's most cherished date.
No problem that confronts the boys whose job is fighting crime
Compares with bringing Santa to the needy kids on time.

The merchants here in Washington had come across galore
With presents that would stock a fairly big department store.
The children laughed and shouted and cheered lustily because They knew beyond all question that there is a Santa Claus.

In gay array the Navy Band played tuneful carols while
The youngsters in procession passed the tree in single file.
The merry role of Santa Claus was taken by the skipper,
Who chuckled as he handed gifts to each delighted nipper.

There were overcoats and oranges,
and candy by the ton,
And toys enough for every kid to have his fill of fun.
There were shoes and sleds and dollies that had hair of molten gold,
And horns to blow, and mittens to ward off the winter cold.

But while the party was arranged for little folks in chief,
Santa Sanford also knows some adults need relief.
All Christmas Eve his minions sped about the icy streets
And delivered to the District's poor huge baskets filled with eats.

Where folks were out of work and didn't have the price of fuel,
A load of coal from Number Five brought cheer and warmth to Yule.
In fact, wherever need was seen within the city's wall,
The precinct boys outdid themselves to bring good cheer to all.

And so the cheers of Washington resound for Captain Bill,
The jovial, genial Santa Claus, and his cops of Capitol Hill.
For every year they spread their cheer
and bounties far and wide;
They bring to life the spirit that should rule at Christmastide.

Two Women Saved By Rescue Squad

Both Are Overcome by Gas Fumes From Leaking Outlets.

Lives of two Washington women were saved from death by gas poisoning yesterday through speedy medical treatment by members of the Fire Rescue Squad and Emergency Hospital physicians.

Overcome by illuminating gas escaping from a jet in her room at 1113 Eleventh street northwest early yesterday, Miss Nellie Copen, 22 years old, was revived after being found unconscious there by other occupants of the dwelling.

Mrs. Alma Cooper, 38 years old, of 1357 Ohio avenue northwest, was overcome by illuminating gas escaping from defective jets on a heater in her second-floor room while asleep last night. The odor attracted other roomers in the house, who summoned the Fire Rescue Squad and physicians from the hospital, who revived her.

RESUME OF VIRGINIA TRUCKING REPORTED

40 Varieties of Vegetables and Fruits Shipped All Over U. S.

POTATOES LEAD CROPS

Richmond, Va., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—The famous trucking section of Virginia near Norfolk during 1929 produced and shipped to various parts of the United States the surprising total of 40 varieties of vegetables and fruits.

These shipments, according to Henry M. Taylor, statistician of the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service, ranged from small lots of a few baskets to thousands of cars of potatoes and spinach. Approximately 3,100 cars of early potatoes were shipped; 3,000 cars of spinach, and 1,500 cars of kale.

A bulk of the shipments went to the cities along the Atlantic seaboard, but some were distributed over wide areas as far West as the Rocky Mountains.

A list of the vegetables and fruits raised in the Norfolk section, some of which are rarely eaten in Virginia, is as follows:

Potatoes, spinach, kale, cabbage, snap beans, beets, cucumbers, strawberries, brocooli, radish, green peas, collards, squash, sweet potatoes, carrots, egg plant, parsley, turnip salad, fennel, peppers, tomatoes, corn, endive, melons, citron, cress, celery, onion, rape, turnips, cauliflower, leeks, figs, Oriental persimmons, artichoke, romaine lettuce, apples, pears, okra and dandelion.

Statistics Law Lax, Says Bureau Head

Dr. Plecker Declares Many Births Unreported in Virginia.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 25 (A.P.).—First steps in a vigorous campaign to enforce the State law requiring registration of births and deaths have been taken by Dr. W. A. Plecker, director of the bureau of vital statistics, in requesting an official investigation by the Commonwealth's attorney of alleged laxity in reporting in Mathews County.

Four births in Mathews County last month, in addition to a number reported by physicians, were revealed by a local newspaper, and Dr. Plecker addressed a request to Commonwealth's attorney J. Boyd Sears to make an investigation and seek an indictment if necessary. Failure to report births and deaths is made a misdemeanor under the Virginia law.

There are approximately 50 physicians in the State, according to Dr. Plecker, "who habitually fail to make proper reports. I shall continue to turn over to the Commonwealth's attorneys all apparent violations of the registration law," he declared.

Woman Tries Suicide On Cheerless Christmas

Facing a cheerless Christmas and despondent because of financial and domestic worries, Mrs. Margaret Privitera, 36 years old, of 6233 Georgia avenue northwest, police reported, attempted to end her life yesterday by drinking poison at her home.

Hurried to Emergency Hospital in an ambulance, the woman was treated by Dr. John Schwarzman, of the hospital staff, and after a brief rest, was permitted to return to her home. At the hospital, it was learned that Mrs. Privitera is the mother of three children and was despondent because she and her husband lacked funds to provide sufficient Christmas presents for them.

Wife With Ter Husband Mysteriously Attacked

Stepping from a street car at 9:50 o'clock last night at Thirty-sixth street and Prospect avenue northwest with her husband, Mrs. Carolina Ricketts, of Fort Myer, Va., was assaulted by an unidentified Negro who slapped her face.

The husband, James Ricketts, leaped at the Negro, and in the brief scuffle ensuing another unidentified colored man attacked him. At the moment one of the pair brought out a knife, Seventh Precinct Policeman M. Bridges hove in sight. Both Negroes fled. Mrs. Rickets declined medical aid.

Aged Washingtonian Hurt at Philadelphia

S. Brown Mercer, 82 years old, of 1466 Clifton street northwest, is in a serious condition in a hospital in Philadelphia, after being injured Tuesday in a collision between a taxicab and street car in that city. He had stopped off there en route to New York, where he had intended to spend Christmas Day with friends.

Inquiries made at the hospital last night revealed that he is suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries. Friends of the injured man, on learning of the accident, started immediately for Philadelphia.

ROCKVILLE CHILDREN GET YULE PRESENTS

Norfolk Baptist Pastor Is Speaker at Town's Exercises.

AUDIENCE SINGS CAROLS

Santa Claus arrived in Rockville last night behind an old gray mare to distribute gifts to more than 300 children grouped around the community Christmas tree on the courthouse lawn. At the last minute it was discovered that Santa was so tired after his strenuous night's work that he couldn't officiate in person and delegated the task to Bernard T. Brosius. The old gray mare which pulled Santa's sled was loaned for the occasion by the town council.

The arrival of Santa climaxed one of the most successful community Christmas celebrations held in Rockville. The exercises were attended by nearly everybody in town. The Rev. Charles R. O'Hara, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, gave the invocation and the address of welcome was by F. Barnard Welch, local attorney and one of the moving lights in all endeavors for the juvenile population. The principal address was by the Rev. P. Roland Wagner, of Norfolk, formerly pastor of the Rockville Baptist Church. The benediction was given by the Rev. G. C. Minor, pastor of the Rockville Christian Church. Both Father O'Hara and the Rev. Mr. Minor are newcomers to Rockville.

The addresses and other features were interspersed with carols sung by the Christmas chorus. The program was completed by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the gathering. The affair was arranged by the Rockville Chamber of Commerce acting as the representative of the various business men and organiations of the town.

Jews Will Debate Palestine Return

Path Development of Country Should Take to Be Discussed.

Dean W. A. Wilbur of the George Washington University will be chairman of the board of judges of the debate Sunday night between the Philadelphia and the Washington Y. M. H. A. at the Jewish Community Center.

The subject for the discussion, "Resolved, That Palestine be developed along cultural rather than political lines," is regarded as of considerable moment in view of the recent disorders in the Holy Land and criticism of Jewish nationalistic aspirations.

The Washington team, composed of Isidore Siegal, Martin Shefferman and Sidney Zlotnick, will uphold the affirmative. The other members of the local debating squad, Benjamin Hinden, David Wallace and Ruby Jacobson assisted in preparing the material and will visit Philadelphia and New York this winter to participate in similar contests sponsored by the Jewish Welfare Board.

Girl and Man Fight; Three Are Hurt

John D. Thomas, 52, Lands in Cell on Charge of Assault.

Three persons were injured and one of them arrested as the result of a fight early yesterday in a building on Pennsylvania avenue northwest near Third street.

Police reported that John D. Thomas, 27 years old, of Second and B streets northwest, became engaged in a fight with Mrs. Frances L. Carper, 23 years old, also living near Second and B streets, and an unidentified man. When police arrived, the unidentified man had fled.

Mrs Carper was treated at Gallinger Hospital for minor cuts and bruises. After treatment at Emergency Hospital, Thomas was arrested at the Sixth Precinct on a charge of assaulting the woman. Judge Frees Man Who Sought Jail

George Wade Gets Freedom, 25 Cents, Work and Free Advice.

George Wade, who came into public attention recently when he asked a policeman to arrest him, yesterday received his freedom as a Christmas gift from Judge Isaac R. Hitt.

Wade not only received his freedom but 25 cents for a Christmas meal—all from the judge. In addition, he was showered with advice.

Action of the court followed receipt of a letter from a woman in the Northeast section of the city, who wrote and declared she could use the man's services. Wade was arrested several days ago at his own request, and was sent to jail by Judge Hitt with the provision that if anything should turn up in the way of a job his sentence would be suspended. Judge Hitt, however, did even better than that, dismissing the case altogether. Wade told the court when he pleaded guilty to vagrancy that he came to Washington with $200 in his pockets and that he had been unable to find employment, and so sought comfort in jail.
